HITLER GOT THE LION'S SHARE OF POLAND AFTER ALL!

Most of the newspapers have published reports indicating that Stalin—who did little fighting—managed to obtain the lion's share of Poland. These reports are not correct, according to a writer who knows conditions in Poland at first hand and has written an article on the subject in this week's issue (Sept. 30) of the China Weekly Review. Another interesting article in this issue discusses the various causes of the Polish collapse. The subject of Poland and what happens to that unfortunate country is of vital importance for those who would understand the fundamentals of the European War situation. The issue of The Review for Sept. 23 also contained an article on the "Rape of Poland" and its significance in the Far East.

CONGRESS BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF THE NEW NEUTRALITY LAW

There have been developments of vast significance in American foreign policy in recent days—the beginning of Congressional consideration of the subject of Neutrality, and the recent moves of the U.S Fleet in the Pacific. While the newspapers have published alarming stories about movements of the fleet—ordered many months ago—they have had practically nothing about the vastly more important subject of new air and naval bases in the Pacific. The subject is covered in this week's issue.

"THE PRICE OF PEACE IN THE MODERN WORLD"

Mr. Roger S. Greene, well known in the Far East, particularly in North China, is the author of an article dealing with the question of a peaceful world. It appears in this week's issue of The Review.

MORAL REARMAMENT COMES TO THE FAR EAST

In last week's issue of The Review there was published an interesting article by a Chinese writer on the subject of Dr. Buchman's "Moral Rearmament" campaign on the U.S. Pacific Coast. This week there is an article on the extension of the campaign to Shanghai.

WANG CHING-WEI HAS TROUBLE WITH NANKING AND PEIPING PUPPETS

The subject of Wang Ching-wei's desertion of Chungking, his secret trip to Tokyo and intrigue with Japanese officials, and his recent activities in trying to set up a new puppet government at Nanking in co-operation with certain Japanese military and political factions, provides material for a further interesting article on this strange episode in Sino-Japanese politics. There is also a summary of latest developments on the Hunan front. Other articles include the full text of President Roosevelt's address on Neutrality and the Arms Embargo, the rapid development of Yunnan Province (By C. Y. W. Meng), and an article pointing out the futility of the Nippon-Soviet Non-Aggression Pact, by a Japanese writer.

In no other publication can you find such a wide variety of timely articles bearing on the stirring developments of the day. If you are not a regular subscriber, send your order for a year's subscription immediately. The rate—which is shortly to be increased—is still $14, including postage. If you reside in West China it is better to use airmail, in which case the rate is $30, including airmail postage. Send orders to any recognized bookstore or direct to

Polish Gallantry in Warsaw Brings Tragic Toll

Historic Capital City in Ruins; Aerial Bombing Reduced Defence; Refugees Tell of Agony Endured

Riga, Sept. 29.

FOR the past ten days civilians stormed the headquarters of the Defence Council in Warsaw begging it to surrender the Polish capital and save thousands of women and children from unnecessary deaths, refugees from Warsaw said today on arriving here. They described the chaotic conditions and misery preceeding the surrender of the capital. Because of the furious German bombardment whole sections of the city were cut off and reduced to starvation level. Such a state existed, they explained, because these areas were unable to communicate with other sections where there was still some food available.

German artillery destroyed and burned large stores of foodstuffs and an aggravation of starvation followed, the refugees explained. Lack of food in certain sections was followed by isolated outbreaks of epidemics which, however, were confined to small centres, they added. Of the 20,000 persons estimated to have been wounded, the refugees said only 2,000 where soldiers and officers.

For ten days, they alleged, the civilians begged the Defence Council to surrender, but the council continued to hold out against the German forces until munitions were exhausted.

The poorer quarters suffered intensely since the water and light services were destroyed more than a week ago, resulting in indescribable misery, the refugees said.

Civilian morale, they admitted, was greatly weakened by the departure of foreign diplomats which followed the German shelling of the capital. Most of the capital's historic buildings have been reduced to ruins, they said.

German troops and sanitation corps have been seen waiting at the gates of the city with medicines and doctors in preparation for the march into the surrendered capital, they said.—United Press.

Tragic Siege Described

Paris, Sept. 29.

Warsaw fell to German air superiority and not to the German Army. Blasted to cinders, more than half burned to the ground by incendiary bombs and shells, thirsty after reservoirs had been pierced and emptied by shells, and helpless against spreading flames, Warsaw asked for armistice. It is evident to all who know Warsaw that the capital could not exist after 22 days of siege.

This is the report of Mr. Wladislas Besterman, United Press correspondent in Warsaw for the past twelve years who left the capital only two days after the American Ambassador, Mr. Anthony Drexel Biddle. Leaving four days after the siege of Warsaw by German Armies began, he arrived in Paris today via Rumania and Yugoslavia at exactly the same time, dispatches announcing the Warsaw Defence army's bid for armistice. He presents a witness story of Poland's martyrdom and describes one of the fiercest sieges in modern military history which wiped out one of the great capitals of the world.

Unprotected Plain

Warsaw is built on a completely unprotected plain, wide open to attack and with none of the georgraphical features which enabled Verdun, for example, to withstand a siege for two years.

The Vistula does not even constitute a barricade because, from the first days of the war, German armies approached Warsaw from three sides—from the west and south-west on the south bank of the river and from the north-east along the right bank.

Heavy German artillery shelling began on the first day of the siege from both sides of the river. The worst front was the "sky front" from which fell a continuous bombardment.

After the siege began, it was evident there was only one route open for retreat from Warsaw—to the south-east toward Lublin. Along that road day and night a countless stream of cars flowed, carrying rich bankers, politicians, foreign diplomats, Polish Government officials and journalists.

Petrol Costs Fortune

Within ten days after the siege began, petrol cost 100 zlotys for a litre. On September 14, the Polish banker, M. Michel Szereszowski, paid 50,000 zlotys for 50 litres to enable him to evacuate his family. Gasoline was scarcely obtainable because the Government had requisitioned it. Those with cars but no gasoline, left Warsaw on foot.

The correspondent picked up, as a hitch hiker, Poland's greatest living poet, M. Julian Tuvim, about twelve miles out on the road to Lublin. He had been walking since the night before. The tiny car was packed. He had his mother, wife, and child with him. M. Tuvim hung on the spare tire rack with the aid of a rope passed over the roof and held at the front end by the journalist's wife. He rode 100 miles in that fashion.

The correspondent estimated the number of people who left the flaming city of Warsaw behind before the Germans completed their encirclement at 30,000. For the most part they were young Jews who feared German concentration camps. Those who remained behind—it must be realized that Warsaw has a normal population of 1,300,000 — lived for three weeks in cellars or trenches dug round the city. It was impossible to live in flats after the fourth day of the siege. Smoke from burning buildings made it most difficult to breathe.

Actual Fighting in Suburbs

The actual fighting took place in the suburbs rather than in the city proper, mainly because tanks could act unimpeded in the suburbs, while they were held up by barricades inside the city, and in the final phases of the fighting, the tanks were actually useless. It was the fact that the barricades made the German tanks unusable apparently which caused the Germans to turn to the use of heavy calibre explosive shells that tore great holes in the streets and shattered the walls of buildings.

The terrific toll taken by the explosive shells and aerial bombs finally caused Warsaw to submit. That is the reason the communiques spoke of the capitulation of the "murdered city," rather than of the fall of the capital. If the destruction continued at the same rate as during the days the correspont was there, it is evident to anyone who knows Warsaw that the city has virtually ceased to exist.—United Press.

Czechs Stand by Poles

M. Osusky Declares Common Cause with Poland for Freedom

Paris, Sept. 29.

The Czechoslovak Minister to Paris, M. Stefan Osusky, proclaimed solidarity with the Poles in their misfortune and declared, in a speech before the American Club here, that the Czechs would never permit their state's rights to suffer prescription.

M. Osusky paid a glowing tribute to Poland's courage when he said, "Those who suffered and died for the Polish nation's sterling qualities cannot and do not perish. Poland has many martyrs, but as long as there are men with the incomparable qualities of Warsaw's Mayor, and as long as there are Poles who cannot live in dishonour and prefer to die with honour, I dare say Poland is free.

"I do not only bow to those qualities and then walk away. No, Czechoslovak citizens stand shoulder to shoulder with the Poles. Our mutual misfortune has brought home the inestimable value of our two people's friendship. Accordingly, Poland and Czechoslovakia, with the exile of their freedom are united in one sentiment, one thought, one hope.

"Long live Poland!"

Puppet Regime Denounced

Denouncing the Government of M. Emil Hacha, the President of the Nazi state of Bohemia-Moravia, as having no existing authority, and as a tool in the hands of the Berlin authorities, M. Osusky traced his battle with the German Embassy at Paris which sought to force him to turn over the Czechoslovak legation after the occupation of Prague.

M. Osusky proclaimed Germany's occupation of Czechoslovakia, and said, "It would be treason on our part if we allowed our rights to be prescribed. It would be treason if we abandoned them. In France, for example, my countrymen are not treated as Czechs and Slovaks, but as citizens of the Czechoslovak Republic. Furthermore, the French Government has authorized me to organize on French soil an independent national army, in which every free Czechoslovak citizen will serve.

"If ever a people knew what they were seeking, it is the Czechoslovak people. They were robbed of their national freedom. Their prosperous industry is ruined. Their accumulated wealth carried away to Germany. Their men dragged to Germany to do forced labour. The use of our national language and the reading of our national literature is forbidden. Teaching our national history is prohibited. Forty-six thousand of our best psople are imprisoned today.

"We know it is better to work with the plough than to handle guns, but we also know that to live in chains is worse than handling guns, for chains are more destructive of human dignity than guns."—United Press.

Japan-German Cultural Relations Fostered

Students Still to Visit Reich

Tokyo, Sept. 30.

Exchange of students, books and cultural films between Japan and Germany will be increased, according to a decision reached at a meeting of the Japan-German cultural committee at the Foreign Office.

It was agreed to carry out projects to promote cultural relations as before. There will be no change in exchanges of students. The Foreign Office is inquiring whether the German Government will accept a proposal to increase school expenses for exchanges of students.

Exchanges of books will be continued as in the past and exchanges of moving pictures will be undertaken on a larger scale than heretofore. The Foreign Office had no intention to treat Jewish teachers here with discrimination, it was announced.—Domei.

Seventy Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF OCTOBER 1, 1869

For some time fears had been entertained that the oyster-beds on the west coast of France would suffer from the intense heat prevalent throughout Europe, but the most despondent owners had not anticipated so complete a disaster as that which has overtaken them. It is now certain that the harvest of this year will be a total failure; in many cases the beds are entirely depopulated and their owners ruined. The damage to individuals is estimated at over Fr. 2,000,000, and the Government will also be a heavy loser. The effect on the Paris prices has been very marked, many restaurants charging from four to five francs a dozen. From Arcachom a very singular result of the heat is reported, which, at one moment threatened to produce a regular pestilence. The muddy shore near that place is at low water the resort of innumerable eels, which bury themselves in the slime till the return of the tide. The excessive thousands and the smell of their dead bodies, washed up and down by the tide, was beginning to spread fever in the neighbourhood. A large number of fishermen were therefore engaged to collect them in heaps on the beach, whence they were carried inland and buried. The total amount thus disposed of was over 400

CONTRACT

By Albert H. Morehead
(In the New York "Times")

The psychic opening bid has been dying gradually for years, and is now almost entirely gone; at Asbury Park in 1932 some deceptive bid or other was attempted on at least every other hand. That the third-hand semi-psychic is not altogether gone, however, is indicated by its use in the following deal by Howard Schenken.

The deal is from the final round of the masters' team game, which Mr. Schenken and his team-mates of the Four Aces won for the fourth time in five years. South dealt, with both sides vulnerable. The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 Diamond	Double
1 Spade	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the ten of clubs, the jack covering and winning when East refused to play the king. Mr. Jacoby kept leading spades and making East win his spade tricks, and finally lost only the four high spades and the two red aces. He made his contract, scoring 80 points, but East-West scored 100 for honours and netted 20 points on the deal, the most unusual point-score of the tournament.

Bidding Borderline Hands

The following deal began with a light opening bid and permitted an unusually fine defensive play.

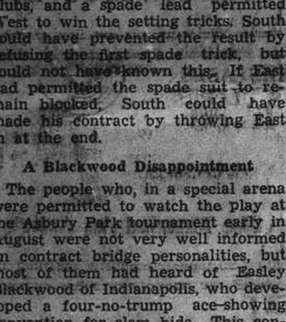
South dealt, with both sides vulnerable. The bidding was:

South	West	North	East
1 Club	Pass	1 Diamond	Pass
1 No trump	Pass	3 No trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened with the jack of spades, dummy's eight was played, and instead of winning with the king, East played the five. South won the trick and led a diamond. When East took the diamond ace, he led the king of spades, unblocking the suit so that West had an entry. South later had to give East the lead in hearts or clubs, and a spade lead permitted West to win the setting tricks. South could have prevented the result by refusing the first spade trick, but could not have known this. If East had permitted the spade suit to remain blocked, South could have made his contract by throwing East in at the end.

A Blackwood Disappointment

The people who, in a special arena were permitted to watch the play at the Asbury Park tournament early in August were not very well informed on contract bridge personalities, but most of them had heard of Easley Blackwood of Indianapolis, who developed a four-no-trump ace-showing convention for slam bids. This convention, first suggested by Mr. Blackwood in 1933, suddenly acquired popularity in late 1937 and is today at least as popular as any other slam-bidding method. When Mr. Blackwood appeared in the arena to perform for the audience, he picked up the South hand in the following deal:



South dealt, with North-South vulnerable. The bidding was:

South	West	North	East
1 Diamond	Pass	1 Heart	Pass
1 Spade	Pass	3 Spades	Pass
4 No trump	Pass	5 Diamonds	Pass
6 Spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

The crowd murmured with excitement when Mr. Blackwood bid four no trump. The five-diamond response by North was conventional, showing that North held one ace (five clubs would have denied holding any ace; five hearts would have shown two aces, etc.). The public exhibition of his slam method ended sadly for Mr. Blackwood, however, for West led out the ace and king of clubs and defeated the contract.

Mr. Blackwood was doubly unfortunate, for his gamble that North's ace would be in hearts, rather than clubs, was not a bad one, and he might still have had a very good chance if it had been East, instead of West, who held the high clubs, or if one opponent had held the ace and the other the king. Some North-South players not only bid but made the slam, when North responded to the diamond bid with one spade instead of one heart. North then became declarer at six spades, and East, not dreaming that his partner had two tricks, opened a heart and permitted the contract to be made.

Also 1. R — K3, 2. R × R; 1. R — R1, 2. Kt — B7, and 1. Q or R × Kt, 2. B — Kt4, variants of the columnar defences. The Key-piece is evidently the KKt, which obscures a B in a diagram, but no better opening could be attained. Variation play is most attractive: a medley of self-blocks and Black and White self-interferences is beautifully blended.

(a) The Vienna Variation, in which all kinds of new effects are being tried out. How inexhaustible is chess, when a fourth move in a most familiar opening is still open to question!

(b) Only a few months ago Reuben Fine wrote that P — K5 was practically forced.

(c) A new move, instead of the natural-looking B — Q2.

(d) Q × BPch opens the QB file to White's advantage: i.e., 11 K — B1 Q × B ch, 12. K — Kt1, when Black cannot play P × B because of 13. R — B1. Should he Castle, then 13. Q — Kt4!

(e) Useful to prevent disturbance when he plays P — KB4. Black must go quietly, for Q × BP. 13. R — B1 Q moves would allow White possibilities of sacrifice on Black's K3.

(f) Admitting error. The objection to P — Kt4, otherwise logical, is the cramp of the Black Q.

(g) Q — R3 could be tried.

(h) If P — B4, 22. Kt × BP ch must be sound.

(i) To cover his Q3 square. White's reply threatens Q — R4 ch.

(j) Or K — B1, 25. R — B6, with the threat of Kt × P ch, to which Black has no adequate defence.

(k) The young, almost unknown, master forces the game most beautifully. Yudovich must accept the sacrifice, or submit to 26. Q — Kt5 ch, with a hopeless position.

(l) K — Kt4, 29. Q — B6 ch, followed by B — Q1 ch.

(m) K moves, 32. R — Q3 ch and mates next move. Kotov came second to the redoubtable Botwinnik, losing to him in the final round.—"Observer."

When someone mentions bird and animal pictures, most of us think of zoos, forests, or the African jungle. But—if you live on or near a farm—you have access to a number of fine animal subjects. And domestic animals yield just as good pictures as wild ones.

Just for the fun of it, why not spend a day picturing animals? Go after expressive, human-interest shots, such as a hen mothering her brood, or pigs struggling for position at the trough. Shoot close-ups of a placid, cud-chewing cow, or a husky work-horse—just as if you were taking pictures of a person. Many animals have definite, almost-human expressions at times....and they'll make fine pictures for your album.

Distant shots, showing the animal small, will be disappointing unless it happens to be an incidental figure in a scenic. Most focusing cameras are adjusted to take subjects as near as six feet—many four feet, or even less. Many box cameras can be set for subjects as near as five. And, if you slip a portrait attachment on the camera lens, you can get even closer. Or, you can take a shot at normal distance, and have the best part of the negative enlarged to give a close-up effect.

It's not necessary to show all of a large animal, such as a cow or horse. Indeed, the head alone often makes a better picture. Choose the viewpoint which shows the head and expression most effectively—and fire away. Keep the background simple—changing your position when necessary to get distracting objects out of the camera's field of view.

Take your camera to the farm.... keep your eyes open....shoot wisely and often. You'll find that any well-stocked barnyard yields splendid picture dividends.

Merrylight Wins Tight Finish From Carnival, Columbus

Joylight Outruns Good Field as Rain Falters; Good Crowd for Autumn Opening

By The Chaser

THE autumn racing season started successfully yesterday afternoon when the Shanghai Race Club held their Seventh Extra Race Meeting of the year. The usual large crowd of enthusiastic race-goers turned out in full force and it all seemed like old times again when racing was not only regarded as the "Sport of Kings" but as an important social event. Racing yesterday was excellent and ten races were held in all, although the programme scheduled nine.

It was a wonderful day for punters yesterday as favourites ran true to form and returned good dividends despite their popularity. Mr. Cire was to the fore again when the stable scored four wins, a second and third, including the two principal events of the day which were won by Merrylight and Joylight.

C. B. Moller was the leading jockey of the day, pulling a hat trick by winning three races consecutively, taking first honours on Libertylight, Merrylight and Joylight. F. Marshall won two races and placed third thrice while Gram who also won two races, placed third once. Judah seemed to have run up against bad luck and was second in three races.

Close Race

The Sydney Stakes went to Merrylight who scored a narrow victory over Carnival as a stepping stone to a potential come-back, while Columbus, who went lame in the Champions in the spring, filled third place also half a length away. In a close race all the way round with the field well bunched until the last hundred, Merrylight and Carnival flashed into the lead at the top of the straight to battle it out and the verdict eventually went to Merrylight by half a length. Columbus was nowhere in the running until the last furlong where he crept through the field on the rails to fill third place. Woodbridge set the pace from the barrier but faded away at the last quarter to let the winners pass him.

Joylight scored a convincing victory in the Melbourne Stakes to display championship form by winning comfortably from Cathay Prince and Merry Jester. Rain, a strong public fancy, did not run up to his spring form and after leading in the first mile of the race (mile and a quarter) he tired quickly and finished nowhere. He was followed by Bagshot and Joylight with Merry Jester lying handy but the moment the field rounded the bend the winners swept past Rain. Joylight carried on to win by two lengths while Cathay Prince came with a late rush to beat Merry Jester by three lengths to take second place. Night Express was very unlucky and was never given a chance as he was caught facing the wrong way at the start and was consequently left ten lengths behind the field.

Stiff Challenge

The first race of the meeting was won by Man O'Pep who, taking advantage of a good start, maintained his lead to hold off Rigodon's stiff challenge and win by half a length. Mischief was also half a length behind. Levenvale was fourth a neck away.

Bell had little difficulty in winning the novice race on Goldenlight and flashed past the post with three clear lengths to spare. Taking the lead from the start, followed by White Birthday and Little Pal, he increased his lead as the race progressed and when entering the straight he was nearly nine lengths to the good. Black Pirate found difficulty in keeping up in the first half mile but came with a good burst of speed to beat Little Pal on the post to take second place three lengths away.

The only Chinese rider to find success yesterday was Chen Poo who rode Jalousie to an easy victory in the Fremantle Cup, beating Rigoletto by two lengths on a tight rein. Merry Christmas had a bitter struggle with Tiddly Winks before he got home by a small margin to fill the remaining place, but was five lengths behind Rigoletto.

White Knight Shows Speed

The half mile race for second class ponies and griffins went to White Night who showed a good turn of speed to beat Daintylight by half a length. A little fancied pony in Lal Golab (late Scarlet Pimpernel) was third two lengths away. Three well fancied ponies in Ancient Temple, Plainsman and Phantom finished fourth, fifth and sixth respectively.

Gram rode a good race to win on Claverton by defeating Socrates and Blenheim. Ideal King and Spotted Sand made most of the running but were not in the picture at the finish. The sixth race—the Toowoomba Stakes—was won by Libertylight who give Chris Moller his first winning ride of the day. He leapt into the lead from the word "go" and led by several lengths all the way and although he was tiring quickly at the finish, his early lead gave him the necessary yards to win. Dow Jones was rapidly catching up in the last fifty yards but his effort fell short by three quarters of a length. A rank outsider in Slow Motion was third two lengths away.

Fighting for second place are Carnival, who succeeded, and Columbus, following by by Bober, Don Pedro and Marvellous Rush.

Carson, Squires Take Title

Harry Li, Poker Tong Give Way in Final of Shanghai Doubles Championship

Coasting along to a 2-set lead gained early in the match, Lewis D. Carson and C. C. Squires made no mistake to regain the Shanghai Men's Doubles Tennis Championship on the S.L.T.A. court yesterday afternoon by disposing of Harry K. F. Li and Poker Tong, winners of last year's title, by 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, 4-6, 6-2.

The experience of the two Americans was too much for the two young Chinese who were always at a loss when a critical stage was reached. Li played a very fine game and was up to Carson's form. His partner, Tong, failed to give sufficient support in the first two sets, putting up an erratic performance.

Squires gave Carson good assistance, although sometimes his shots failed him badly. It was mainly due to a slight let down in the early part of the third that Li and Tong were given the chance to fight back and win two successive sets, thereby stretching the contest to a fifth session.

Hard Shots

The first six games went with the service. Every one delivered hard shots, especially Squires who took a game to love in the fourth. In the seventh Tong faltered. He was wild and lost from 15-40. Squires increased the margin to 5-3 before Li reduced arrears. Carson nearly threw away the tenth as he was love-40 behind before finally winning. Tong was made the victim as Carson and Squires continually concentrated their shots upon him. Li worked very hard to stave off defeat. He helped to put the score to deuce on four occasions.

The second set saw the Chinese take a 2-game advantage. Tong won the opening game and then Squires lost the second after a hard struggle which three times went to deuce. Li was remarkably cool and steady, going out after his points with smashes and volleys. Unfortunately, he lost his first service game in the third. Carson brought the score to a tie and then he and Squires combined to break Tong's service.

Tong redeemed himself in the following two games in which he was successful in beating his opponents with scorching drives. Tong's play failed to upset Carson for he had an easy time winning the eighth game to love and levelling the score again. A furious battle followed in which Tong faltered when play had reached deuce three times. Squires finished the set on his next service.

Li and Tong took the initiative in the third set. Carson and Squires became indifferent. After Li took the first game Carson dropped his for the first time. These two games changed the whole aspect of the fight, with the trailers having most of the play. Li was doing a fine job and handled the situation in perfect style. He proved fairly unbeatable, leading Tong to emerge on top, 6-2.

The victory marked Carson's third success this year. He won the Mixed Doubles with Mrs. M. Reader Harris as partner and followed with the Singles Championship. Yesterday he took the Doubles to complete his campaign.

Future of St. Andrews Now in Doubt

The future of the Old Course at St. Andrews, scene of many historic championships, is in doubt. Members of the green-keeping staff are doing national service and the secretary of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club has stated that members of the club house staff are helping with the weeding. The Secretary does not know what plans the club will make for the resumption of competitive golf; in fact he stated that even the future of the Old Course was in doubt.

Viennese Master to Play Chess Here

Tournament Season Will Begin This Week

The 1939-40 chess season will be opened by the International Chess Club at its annual general meeting which will be held at the Foreign Y.M.C.A. at 9 p.m. on Wednesday, October 4. Preceding the meeting there will be a dinner for members and their guests.

According to present plans the first important chess event of the new year will be a simultaneous exhibition at which the Shanghai players will have an opportunity to meet the Viennese Master E. Glass, one of the top ranking players of the former Austrian capital. The master who has been resident in Shanghai for some time past will play against an unlimited number of opponents and the charge per board will be $1.50. Play will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday, October 11. Players desirous of taking part and who are not members of the International Chess Club or other chess organizations are advised to communicate with the Secretary of the I.C.C. before October 10.

Much Talent in Shanghai

The start of the Shanghai Championship and other classified tournaments is tentatively set for October 18.

In view of the exceptionally large number of qualified players, the Championship will probably consist of a preliminary tournament to be played in two groups and a final in which the 3-4 winners from each group will meet. As in addition to the strongest Shanghai chess players a number of excellent Austrian and German players will also participate in this event, this year's Championship Tourney ought to be of extraordinary interest.

Bowling Congress to Hold Meeting

Annual Gathering to Be At American Club

The Annual General Meeting of the Shanghai Bowling Congress will be held at the American Club at 5.30 p.m. on Monday, October 2. for:

(1) President's reports
(2) Accounts of past season
(3) Election of Officers

Immediately following, the first meeting of the Executive Committee (1939/1940) will be held to discuss plans for the coming season.

Strikes Out Two Batters With Bases Full; Fight For Minor Honours

New York, Sept. 29.

The Cleveland Indians strengthened their claim to third place money in the American League baseball race today by winning both ends of a double header with Detroit, 4 to 3 and 3 to 0.

Mel Harder pitched the opening game until the eighth inning when two Tigers got on base with only one out. Bob Feller relieved Harder and walked the next batter, filling the bases. Feller struck out the next two batters. Rudy York hit a homer for the Tigers and Mel Harder got one for the Indians.

The Tigers' hopes for fourth place were blasted in the nightcap, which was shortened to six innings because of darkness. No other American League games were played.

Rally Squelched

The Brooklyn Dodgers, struggling for third place in the National League standings, split a double header with the Bees. Boston won the opener 2 to 1. Specs MacFayden went in as relief hurler in the ninth inning and squelched a Dodger rally, after Jim Ripple had singled and Gene Moore had walked.

The Dodgers bunched nine hits to win the nightcap 7 to 1. Hugh Casey held the Bees to seven scattered hits, struck out four batters, and walked two. The Dodgers scored three runs in the fourth inning.

The Cincinnati Reds, with the pennant already won, took a 2 to 1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Lee Grissom held the Pirates to seven hits. No other National League games played.

Recs Overwhelm Police to Consolidate Position

Lawmen Fall to Fourth Place in Bowls League; Blues and Reds Second and Third on List

BY overwhelming the Police by 4½ points to ½ yesterday, the Recreation Club have entrenched themselves further in the first place of the Lawn Bowls League senior division. The Police, who were the Recs' nearest rivals, have now slipped into fourth place with the two S.L.B.C. teams, the "Blues" and "Reds" tied for the runner-up position, each with 38½ points out of a possible 60.

The S.L.B.C. Reds made a supreme effort in a last-minute climb yesterday when they gained five clear points at the expense of the Junior Golf Club who could score only 37 shots to their rival's 70. Producing a surprise, the Country Club gained their second triumph of the season by taking the measure of the Hongkew Golf Club by 61-51 to score 4-1 in points. In the remaining first division game, the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club took four points from Clube Lusitano in a close fight.

Only one match was played in the junior division when Clube Lusitano asserted their supremacy over the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club, thus consolidating their lead with the four points which they won from the second ranking Wayside team. The other scheduled encounter was won by a walkover when the Police netted five points, the Recs side failing to turn up.

Recs Beat Police

In the match between the Recs and the Police, G. B. Stormes' four played a great part in the ultimate victory as they scored a convincing win of 25-15 against the rink skipped by A. B Hogg. A complete whitewashing for the Police was prevented when C. J. Bull's men played a fine match to tie 17-17 with G. V. Jensen's four, thus wresting half a point from the league leaders and last year's champions.

In the remaining rink, however, G. N. Manley's four was able to defeat S. S. Wilkinson's men by 20-16 to set the final score at 72-48 in favour of the Recs.

Lusitano Defeated

An extremely close fight resulted from the encounter between the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club and the Clube Lusitano when the Y.B.C. edged out their opponents by 58-53. W. R. Chisholm skipped his men to a fine 29-15 triumph for the winners, winning by the widest margin in the match.

The Portuguese club retaliated through A. M. Souza's quartette who ran up 23 shots against W. Grant's men who were able to score only 13 woods. The third rink, skipped by A. Sharp, decided a close match in favour of the Y.B.C. when they ran out winners by one shot over S. del Rivero's four, the score reading 16-15. This last win permitted the Y.B.C. to score four points.

Country Club Win

Apparently the Hongkew Golf Club misjudged the strength of their opponents, the Country Club, yesterday afternoon as the latter side broke their long series of losses by trouncing the H.G.C. by 4-1, though winning only 61-51 in shots.

C. Pereira's four were the only representatives of the Hongkew side who were able to hold their own against a determined Country Club fight; they defeated M. Reader Harris' four by 19-15. Both the rinks skipped by W. G. Crokam and C. W. Gordon, however, turned the tide of the match in favour of the Country Club when they emerged victorious by the respective scores of 23-13 and 23-19.

Reds Win Easily

Led by A. Macgregor's men, who vanquished K. L. Swartzell's four by the one-sided score of 33-8, the S.L.B.C. Reds had the easiest time of all the winners yesterday, the score finally ending at 70-37 in their favour despite the opposition put up by the Junior Golf Club. The latter team had to concede the full five points.

With the exception of Macgregor's rink, the other matches were closely contested as T. S. Parry's four won by 19-12 and E. R. Harmer's four were fully extended, coming out on top by only 18-17 as J. Gaffney's men supplied stubborn opposition.

Splendid Struggle

Realising that the match was of the utmost importance in the race for second division honours, both the Clube Lusitano and the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club put up a splendid struggle when the two teams clashed yesterday, the Portuguese team just managing to win by 59 shots to 55.

The Lusitano team scored four points, however, mainly through the efforts of L. F. Lopes' and J. Sepe's rinks who gave the winners a fine start with 23-16 and 22-12 victories. A 27-14 win was gained by L. Beattie's four for the Y.B.C. to prevent complete humiliation.

Winning Runs Hit As Darkness Falls

A lively innings of 59 which included no less than nine boundary hits by D. J. Graybrook, the Recs massive hiter, was responsible for upsetting a Police Cricket XI on the Recs ground yesterday afternoon by the narrow margin of two wickets. Coming to the crease after three wickets had fallen for 45 in response to 158 knocked up by the "coppers," Graybrook bided his time and eventually hitting out with a will, smashed the attack opposing him to the tune of 59 before he retired undefeated when the Recs score was 137. He was missed before he was off the mark behind the stumps and again at 44.

The home side, batting first, belted out 178 for eight wickets declared in quick time and then put out nine of their opponents for 125, to gain a moral, though not a straight, win.

Hardfought Tennis Final

Tense Moments as Miss Holwill Rallies in Last Set to Win Women's Singles Championship

FIGHTING with her back to the wall and with grim determination, Miss M. S. "Jimmy" Holwill rallied to win the Shanghai Ladies Singles Championship from Mrs. A. B. Lasswell on the S.L.T.A. court yesterday afternoon. The champion won by two 8-6 sets and she delighted the spectators with a splendid display in which time after time she extricated herself from losing positions.

Mrs. Lasswell was not in her usual steady form. She appeared to show signs of fatigue after her marathon fight against Mrs. T. Collaco the day before in the semi-finals in which no less than 38 games were played. Her strokes were not as forceful as they have been.

Miss Holwill's chief weapon was a strong service. She could attack as well as defend, and some of her volleying assaults were successful. Her lobs were of good length and she was so plucky and resourceful that she often scored from unfavourable spots. Whenever there was a chance she never hesitated to make net excursions and there she forces her rival to become ruffled.

The champion yielded the first two games when she could not settle down. She made repeated mistakes in the second game in returning Mrs. Lasswell's services. It was not until the third, that the ultimate winner started to find her feet, winning a long drawn out game which four times reached deuce. Miss Holwill's good shots came in the fourth, in which she broke her opponent's service with the loss of only one point.

Baseline Duels

The players were engaged in baseline duels, with the American getting the better of the exchanges as she went ahead to grab a lead of 5-3. During this period Mrs. Lasswell was playing at her best. She drove accurately and also mixed her shots, long and short, so that she was constantly pressing.

Miss Holwill took the ninth game but was on the verge of losing the set when suddenly fortune changed. Twice Mrs. Lasswell muffed a set-point and permitted the game to reach deuce. She double-faulted and then drove out of the side-line when attempting a cross-court shot.

Pluck Rally

With the score tied at 5-all, Miss Holwill took a new lease on life and immediately forged ahead to lead by 6-5. Making a desperate struggle, Mrs. Lasswell balanced the standing, but in the following she was unable to keep her pace up and dropped the set.

In the second set it seemed that Mrs. Lasswell was going to make short work of her opponent, who was not up to her best. Miss Holwill lost three straight games before and started to fight her way back. Retrieving with utmost care, Miss Holwill succeeded in reeling off four games in quick order. Mrs. Lasswell also put all she had into the fight and the spectators were continually kept in suspense.

Mrs. Lasswell made a game fight when she refused to lose the set and match in the tenth game by rallying to stay even to 5-all after having trailed by love-40. Play reached another deadlock at 6-all before Miss Holwill won the last two games to assure herself of the title.

SAID the up-to-date poultry farmer to his poultryman, "Now you must be very particular in marking down the number of eggs laid in each coop every day, and also which hen lays the most eggs every week, and—"

In the Dark

SOMEONE from near Huddersfield reports that this unfortunate incident occurred during the recent black-out (writes Northerner in the Yorkshire "Post.")

A passing policeman observed a light in a bedroom window and knocked at the door of the offending house. In due course a harassed-looking householder in a dressing gown opened it. "I am afraid I shall have to ask you to go to bed in the dark," said the policeman.

"Go to bed in the dark!" cried the householder bitterly, "that's just what I did do—and the cat's had kittens in the middle of it."

Porterage

A CORRESPONDENT of "The Times" recalls the story of a Civil Servant of a past generation whose duties required him to travel at the Government's expense. In the account of his expenses he included: "Cab. 1s. 6d., Porter, 6d."

In reply, he was requested to state whether the word "porter" referred to a manual labourer or to the beverage of that name. In the former case his claim should be for "porterage."

Upon which he sent an account amended as follows: "Porterage, 6d. Cabbage, 1s. 6d."

Bogeys

If you want our impressions of American opinion, writes Nat Gubbins in the "Sunday Express," we can give them in a few words, because we found conversation difficult in the heat.

We spent most of our time watching almost naked stockbrokers being hauled out of the water at Long Beach or the Adirondacks to talk on the telephone to Wall Street; or sitting in an air-conditioned bar in New York trying to exchange intelligent opinions with Italian or German waiters who could hardly speak English.

Regarding Mr. Roosevelt, he is both loved and hated with passionate intensity.

Whether you love him or hate him in America depends on whether you eat corn meal mush in the slums or lobster Newburg at the Waldorf.

Another American bogey is the alarming growth of the negro population.

Pessimists in the United States believe it won't be long before the population is two-thirds black, with a negro President married to a coal-black mammy writing a daily column called "Mah Day."

The Knowing Bird

Yes, certainly Himmler is coming up, writes Emrys Jones in the "Daily Mail." Last week they were printing benign and smiling pictures of this pincenezed, mildish-looking man. Nobody in Germany is deceived, for when the lips of Himmler curve in a smile, the eyes remain hard and unsmiling.

Still, they are whispering jokes about him. I was told the one about Hitler and the parrot.

One day an adjutant brought in a parrot to Hitler, sent him by an admirer.

Immediately the parrot saw the Führer, it cried "Heil Hitler!" Hitler was amused, told the adjutant to place it on a table.

Then Goering came in. "Heil Goering" cried the parrot.

Next came Goebbels, and he, too, was greeted by the parrot, and they all said what a wonderful bird it was. Meanwhile, Goering, looking through the window, saw Himmler on his way in. Hitler suggested that they hide behind the curtain to see what happened.

When Himmler entered the parrot cried, "Heil, Himmler!"

Himmler blinked, saw no one in the room, and left.

Then the parrot cried, "Now it's all right, boys, you can come out. He' gone!"

A joke with significance in Germany now, for Himmler is said to have put his secret agents even on to the leaders of the Reich.

Unified Support For Gt. Britain

Dominions, Colonies and Dependencies Fully Agreed Against Hitler Regime

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Reference is sometimes made in countries which have no love for the British Empire to the alleged failings of the British Government and the weaknesses of the ties which bind the Empire together. Small grievances or disturbances in the Dominions, Colonies or Dependencies are magnified into risings or revolts. Actually, considering the number and variety of the territories owning allegiance to the British crown, there is little real dissatisfaction in any of them.

The most important parts of the Empire are, of course, the self-governing Dominions—Australia, Canada, the Irish Free State, Newfoundland, New Zealand and South Africa. With Britain these form what has come to be called the British Commonwealth of Free Nations, and the establishment of this commonwealth marks one of the most profound and far-reaching constitutional changes in the history of the British peoples.

The principle upon which the Commonwealth is based is that of the co-operation of an association of free peoples. Each Dominion is a self-governing community, with its own sovereign freedom, but accustomed to co-operate closely with the others in matters of common concern, and all associated under the British crown.

Empire Political Philosophy

Speaking as Chairman of the Imperial Conference, 1937, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, M.P., then British Prime Minister, and now Lord Baldwin of Bewdley, said that the British Empire has never been a static organism. "Bearing within itself seeds of development of which its founders were unaware, it has been moulded by, and itself has moulded, a political philosophy." During the past quarter of a century there have been far-reaching changes in status and mutual relationships, and he referred in particular to the Declaration of the Imperial Conference of 1926 and to the passage into law in 1931 of the Statute of Westminster, which established the above-mentioned self-governing Dominions. In 1935 the Government of India Act conferred a considerable measure of self-government on the peoples of India.

The British Government is a democratic government, democracy being the best means so far devised to preserve those things to which the British Commonwealth attaches supreme value—liberty, and individual freedom of thought, of speech and of conscience, together with the idea of service to the State.

Speaking at the same Imperial Conference in 1937, Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister of Canada, said that "The stark contrast between liberty and regimentation has now been made manifest to all, the value of freedom as the source of self-realization, of national power, of enduring international co-operation, is more fully realized than ever before."

Support for Britain

What attitude, then, do these self-governing countries adopt towards Britain in the present state of world unrest? What justification is there for assuming that any of them contemplate breaking away from the rest and possibly supporting the totalitarian states? From the utterances of their leading statesmen and newspapers there is no reason whatever for assuming that any of them would be glad to be free of the easy links which bind them to Great Britain.

After an emergency meeting of the Federal Cabinet last March, the late Mr. Lyons, then Prime Minister of Australia, stated that the Commonwealth Government had assured the British Government of its readiness to co-operate in endeavours to deal with the international situation, and had expressed its whole-hearted support of the efforts the British Government were making to ensure the peace and security of the world from further encroachments by force on the freedom and independence of other nations.

Other Australian leaders and newspaper have expressed similar sentiments. Mr. Lyons' successor, Mr. Menzies, recently affirmed the belief of Australians in British policy, and added that, "if pursuit of that policy means troubles or even war for Britain, there need be no doubt that the trouble or endurance of the trials of war will be shared by the people of Australia."

Projects Based on Fallacy

Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister of Canada, said that an attack on Britain would be regarded as an attack on all parts of the Commonwealth. Mr. Lapointe, the Canadian Minister of Justice, was equally outspoken. If Britain went to war with the declared dictators, he said, Canada's position would not be much influenced by constitutional niceties. "If any dictator had made up his mind that the British Commonwealth was going to be disrupted he was basing his projects on a fallacy." A canvass of Canadian members of Parliament revealed that the great majority were determined in the event of war instantly to support Britain.

Mr. Savage, the Prime Minister of New Zealand, said "New Zealand will be found wherever Britain is, if Britain is in trouble. There has never been any doubt about New Zealand's loyalty."

General Hertzog, the Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, was equally emphatic. "Britain is rearming," he said in a recent speech at Capetown, "with no other purpose than to preserve peace. It was to let people who wanted war know that they would be stopped." To help to stop such people South Africa would be ready to play her part.

In India many of those who have protested against certain aspects of British rule have declared for Britain against any threat of aggression from the totalitarian states. One pro-Congress paper asked whether there was one democratically-minded Indian whose sympathies were not with Britain and France rather than with Germany and Italy.

There is thus overwhelming evidence that — now that war has come —those who have believed in the lack of unity among the British peoples in various parts of the world will be astonished at the complete and in-

British Convoy System Makes Efficient Headway

Lull in U-Boat Attacks; Nazi Propaganda Shows Fears; Falsehoods Patently Exposed

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Sept. 30.

THE speed with which the Navy has acted in instituting the convoy system can be appreciated from facts officially made public today. By September 7 which is only four days after the outbreak of the War, outward convoys were already being run. The arrangement of convoys for homecoming merchantmen naturally took somewhat longer, but the first convoy was operating in the homeward direction a week later. After just under a month of war, Britain has got into operation a convoy system which compares, in extent, very favourably with the ultimate effort achieved in 1918, and the Navy has made full use of its experience during the last war.

There is certainly a lull in U-boat attacks on British shipping This may be due to the "changeover," which must be taking place between the first batch of German submarines which were on trade routes at the outbreak of the War, and reliefs which are likely to take their place.

During this lull, the convoy system is being improved and will soon be in full stride. It will protect merchantmen, not only from U-boats but against air attacks or raids of any armed ships Germany might have on the high seas.

The Navy showed foresight in other directions by providing, before hostilities started, defence courses for the officers and men of the Merchant Navy, and by stiffening the number of merchantships, so that eventually they might have gun protection of their own. The Navy has already attained a position comparable to the one in which it found itself nearly three years after the start of the last war.

Nazi Propaganda Exposed

It is significant of the great and it may well be conclusive, importance of economic warfare in the present conflict with Germany, that so large a part of Nazi propaganda is directed to misrepresentation of British action in this respect, and an attempt to justify the methods employed by the Nazi Government itself, which are "violent, undiscriminating and inherently likely to cause loss of life," according to informed British quarters.

"British methods, pursued in the legitimate exercise of seapower, are directed to lawful ends and not aimed against human life or innocent cargoes," it is added. So far as British action against contraband trade is concerned, the same quarters continue, "the instruments by which it is carried out are such as to permit full conformity with the laws of war and to avoid loss to life or unnecessary damage.

"The difference between German and British methods, is that one is essentially a weapon of terror, even if wielded, as it often is, by men personally brave and gallant, while the other is a carefully regulated system of warfare under the control of properly regulated courts.

Two Fallacies Refuted

"German propaganda on this subject takes two principal forms. There is, first of all, the assertion that Britain, by the inclusion of foodstuffs on the list of conditional contraband, is conducting a blockade that is both inhuman and illegal, and secondly, there is the suggestion that British action is inimical and unfair to neutral interests."

As to inhumanity, it is to be remembered that it was the Nazi who began, some years ago, to deny food to German women and children from the day when Marshal Goering told them it was better to have guns than butter. "It was this fatal choice made by Nazi leaders which first caused the German people to tighten their belts, and the same leadership which has plunged them, and other peoples as well, into a war, which is itself a great inhumanity.

"Starvation has been one of the consequences of warfare, and one of its weapons from the earliest times. As the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, said in the House of Commons last Tuesday. No one has ever suggested that a besieging commander should allow free rations to a besieged town.

Free Germans to Eat More

"But it can be said with truth that it is the aim of the Allies, when the War is over, that the German people should have fewer guns and more food, and meanwhile every effort is being made to minimise, wherever possible, the sufferings of non-combatant enemy.

"So far as the second claim of German propaganda is concerned, it is likely to be received with scepticism in neutral countries, where there is general recognition that the British, while conducting a war that has been forced upon them, seek and intend to safeguard the interests of neutrals which are indeed, in many respects, identical with British's own interests. —Reuter.

Hongkong Journals Favour Peace

Wang Chung-hui Interview Well Received; Japanese Must First "Repent"

Hongkong, Sept. 30.

Reversing their previous strong opinions favouring resistance to Japan, vernacular newspapers in Hongkong, including the "Kuomin Jih Pao" (People's Daily News), the "Wahkiu Yat Pao" (Overseas Chinese Daily News), and the "Chungkuo Wan Pao," this morning editorially voiced approval for the peace statement of Dr. Wang Chung-hui, Foreign Minister of the Chungking regime.

Although the "Ta Kung Pao" and the "Singtao Jih Pao" (Star Island Daily News) remained reticent, the consensus of Chinese public opinion was summed up as follows:

"At a time when as at present international relations show an endless series of surprises the foreign policy of a country should also be changed in accordance with external changes. It is unnecessary to adhere to a single policy but appropriate measures should be taken according to the new situation."

Overseas Chinese were said to disapprove of continued resistance. All papers, however, emphasized that respect for territory and sovereignty should form the basis of peace negotiations.

The "Wahkiu Yat Pao," one of the most influential dailies, said the way open at present before China was to seek the existence of the country and people through resistance, but there was no necessity to reject peace if independence and sovereignty, the minimum requirements, were secured.

Economic Co-operation

Economic co-operation under independent sovereignty existed between various countries and there was no reason to exclude Japan alone from that possibility, the paper stated.

If America considered the time inopportune for mediation and if Japan failed to "repent" China would be obliged to continue resistance and never would consent to open direct negotiations for peace with Japan, according to the journal.

The "Kuomin Jih Pao" said Dr. Wang's statement manifested China's sincere love of peace and looked forward to America's support in accordance with the spirit of the Nine-Power Pact.

The daily claimed that Dr. Wang's statement by no means signified the collapse of China's power of resistance, neither did it show that China would ask Japan for peace.—Domei.

Chinese Aerodromes Heavily Bombed

Japanese Claim Big Damage Done in Chungking

A Japanese Naval Air Base, Sept. 30.

Japanese naval bombing planes, which attacked air fields in the vicinity of Chungking on Thursday night, again made a raid upon air fields in the same area at 11 o'clock last night.

A squadron of Japanese planes, evading Chinese machine-gun fire and searchlights, heavily bombed the Kwangyangpa aerodrome and returned safely.

Another squadron of Japanese naval planes for the first time bombed the Suining air field, 70 kilometres north-east of Chungking, which the Chinese had been secretly building. The aerodrome and buildings attached to the field were bombed to ruins. All Japanese planes returned safely to their bases, without encountering any counter-attacks by Chinese planes.—Domei.

Tokyo Parleys May Be Resumed

Reports of Anglo-Japanese Negotiations Persist in Capital, Despite Denial

Tokyo, Sept. 30.

The Japanese press today features a report that the Anglo-Japanese Conference will shortly be resumed.

It transpires that shortly after the formation of the Cabinet by General Abe, probably on September 5, Sir Robert Craigie, the British Ambassador, formally proposed that the talks be resumed.

Mr. Sotomatsu Kato, Japanese Minister-at-Large in China and head of the Japanese delegation to the conference, is expected to interview Sir Robert Craigie some time today.

The British Embassy declines to confirm or deny the likelihood of the interview.

Great Britain is reported to have proposed that the Tientsin issues and the problems forming their background should be taken up again at the point reached on August 15.

Japan's Policy Unchanged

Stressing, however, that Great Britain has been compelled to make a marked change in her policy towards Japan because of the European war, the "Asahi Shimbun" declares that the Japanese Government has no such intention, "as the conversations broke down as the result of a frontal clash of views, and no vital change has occurred in international relations and in the situation in the Far East."

"The Japanese Government," the newspaper says, "now wishes to keep in abeyance the question of Anglo-Japanese general rights and interests and to take up the question of the maintenance of public order in Tientsin and other parts of China."

The "Asahi" then asserts that Britain has withdrawn Mr. E. G. Jamieson, British Consul-General in Tientsin, and "is expected to recall Sir Archibald Kerr (British Ambassador to China) shortly."

Such action by Britain, the journal remarks, leads to the belief that a fundamental adjustment of Anglo-Japanese relations in China is eventually possible.

Another Pending Issue

It adds, however, that discussion of this fundamental question is considered still premature, as the Japanese recommendation to Britain and France of September 5 for the withdrawal of their armed forces in China is still a pending issue, and some concrete steps in this connection must be taken first.

The "Hochi Shimbun" asserts that Japan means to stick to her stern demand that Britain abandon her pro-Chiang Kai-shek policy "sweepingly," in conformity with the spirit of the Arita-Craigie agreement.

The "Kokumin Shimbun" understands that the important changes in personnel which Admiral Nomura, the Foreign Minister, is now carrying out in the Foreign Office must be completed before the Anglo-Japanese conversations can be resumed.

It, therefore, doubts whether Mr. Sotomatsu Kato will again be the chief delegate, as he is said to be engaged in important matters in connection with the formation of the Wang Ching-wei régime.

The Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Masayuki Tani, is mentioned as likely to take direct charge of the conversations.—Reuter.

Resumption Denied

Tokyo, Sept. 30.

The report of an early resumption of the Anglo-Japanese Conference on Tientsin, carried by the "Asahi" and other newspapers, was categorically denied by the spokesman of the Foreign Office who told Japanese newspapermen this morning that the Japanese Government has hitherto not received any proposals from the British Government for the resumption of the Tokyo parley.

Qualified observers here believe that the Japanese Government is taking a "cautious attitude regarding the question of the resumption of the Anglo-Japanese Conference, in view of the home and foreign situation."

They say that the Japanese Government is not likely to accept British proposals for the resumption of the Tokyo parley, even if made, unless "definite prospects" are in sight for an amicable settlement of questions, because should the second Anglo-Japanese Conference strike a snag, like the first one, relations between the Japanese Government and Great Britain will be further worsened.—Reuter.

Cabaret Girl Charged With Robbers

Suspected to Be Member Of Armed Gang

Three men and a Chinese cabaret girl were brought before the First Special District Court yesterday on suspicion that they were involved in some armed robberies for which 31 other suspects are being held by the court. The accused were remanded in custody for a week, so that they might be tried with other suspects already arrested.

Two guns and two imitation pistols were seized from the gang and they are being examined by experts. The cabaret girl was arrested on Friday at her home at 96 Tai An Alley off North Shansi Road, while the three men were caught in a house near Markham Road. The police party was led by Detective-Sergeant Jones of the Central Police Station.

Soviet Planes Scatter Pamphlets

Inhabitants of Occupied Poland Reassured

Moscow, Sept. 30.

Soviet planes yesterday afternoon flew over towns and villages in the former Polish territory of White Russia and Ukraine and scattered leaflets containing the text of the Russo-German frontier agreement, a Moscow radio broadcast said yesterday.

A footnote on the pamphlets stated that the agreement ends the Polish noblemen's exploitation and oppression of White Russians and Ukrainians.

"Now, people in the safe custody of the Soviet will face a future full of happiness and justice," the pamphlets said.—United Press.

First Pictures of War Scenes in London, Paris

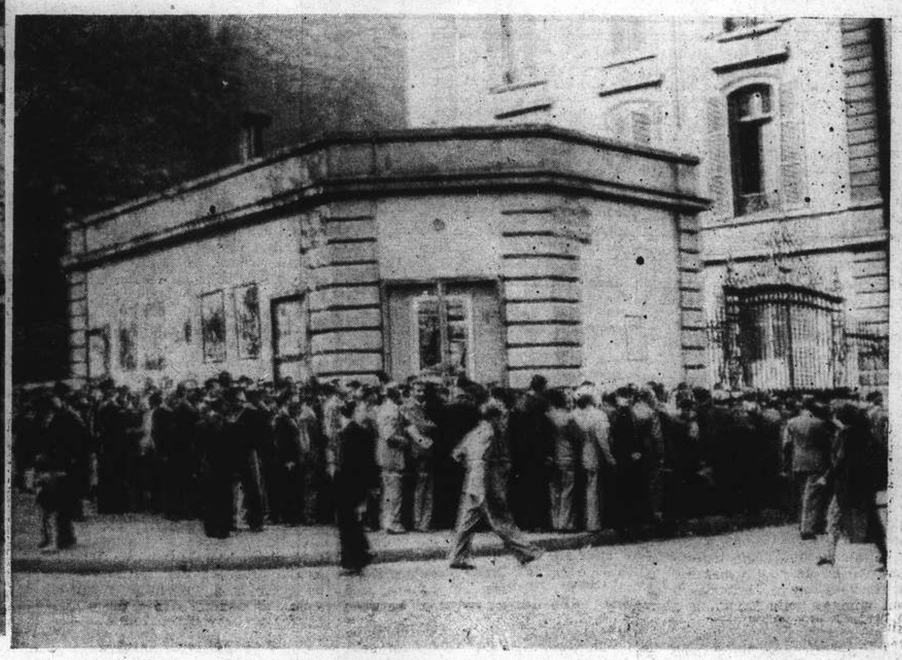
Shown outside the House of Commons is a section of the huge crowd, which awaited Parliament's historic decision to fight and end German aggression.

King George is seen as he delivered his radio message to the Empire shortly after the declaration of war. A wireless version of this picture was published on September 21.

London "Bobbies," wearing unfamiliar steel helmets, are seen keeping back cheering crowds of Londoners as they acclaim Mr. Neville Chamberlain after he had announced Britain's determination to fight.

In the hands of the police is a man who attempted to scare the crowd outside 10 Downing St., by throwing rubber balls into the air and shouting that they were bombs.

Shortly after the declaration of war, London received its first air raid warning. Here is a scene as Londoners filed in an orderly manner into air raid shelters.



A scene in Paris as foreigners gathered in huge numbers to join up in the French Army as the decision to fight Germany was made known.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

LAMALAND POLITICS

BY TIBETAN

A somewhat cruel tragedy has overtaken the small mission to Tibetans at Tsakalo on the left bank of the Mekong. Dr. and Mrs Bare, former members of the Christian Mission at Batang, some years ago found it possible to reside at Tsakalo, territory directly under the Government of Lhasa. Père Nussbaum had been there for some years where the French mission had a station for 70 years. The Catholic Mission suffered considerable persecution and some of their missionaries were murdered, but the work made progress and a small church was built up. While Tsakalo was under Chinese authority the French mission bought land and in it they placed their Tibetan Christians. As the church grew and members increased, more land was secured till 30 years ago there was quite a Catholic colony at Tsakalo. Five or six years ago a border incident occurred between the Chinese and the Tibetans over the demarcation of the frontier. Pending confirmation from the Central Government the Yangtze was accepted by the two States as the border between China and Tibet. The Yangtze, like other rivers, makes many twists in this part of the world, so a little twist threw Tsakalo, formerly in Chinese territory, into the Land of the Lamas. Gen. Teng accomplished this but it was entirely a pro tem arrangement between the two governments and apparently still holds good.

* * *

Père Nussbaum woke up one morning to find himself in the peculiar position of being the only foreign missionary in Lamaland. When the Lhasa authorities discovered that the new frontier had thrown in a preacher of the Christian religion they at once set to work to remove him. But this was not easy. Père Nussbaum was a German in a French mission with a Chinese passport in Tibetan territory. He refused to leave his little flock unless superior force was used. Force was used but the brave père stood by the Tibetan Christians. The Lhasa Government then tried other means, one of which was to confiscate the mission's land and property; another was to hinder the Tibetans attending worship, while another was to cut off the père's supplies. All failed, however, and Père Nussbaum showed the lama authorities that neither force nor intrigue could move him. He bravely stuck to his guns and wore the Asiatics down, not a very easy thing to do. The Lhasa authorities now consoled themselves with the fact that the père and the mission had been there a long time, so why not let them stay. At times it looked as if the lamas would win and the priest would have to move bag and baggage back on to Chinese territory. Père Nussbaum, however, proved to be a stubborn and determined German and was not quite prepared to leave his little flock simply because the Lhasa authorities demanded him to do so.

* * *

This year Dr. Bare at Tsakalo was joined by Mr. and Mrs Edgar Nichols, four children, and two American nurses; and last year two young Norwegians joined him; making a total community, including children, of sixteen. For a time missionary life in the Land of the Lamas seemed to move along quite smoothly. The Lhasa representatives were continually changed and among those who came and went were a number of young English-speaking Tibetans who had been trained in the Darjeeling Public High School. These men occupied their positions for a few months and then went to other appointments on the Roof of the World. While in Tsakalo they made themselves very friendly with the American doctor and his wife and it looked as if the mission might be allowed to remain in the Land of the Lamas. It was discovered that the Darjeeling Public High School boy had very little influence in the Forbidden Land and Dr. Bare soon became conscious that his stay in Tsakalo (Yengching—the salt wells) was being discussed in Lhasa and that probably he would have to move on. Very soon the Tibetans informed him and his party that their residence in Tibet as missionaries was undesirable and that they would need to move to Yunnan or Szechuan, Adentsi or Batang. This firm announcement came as a terrible blow to this young, hopeful mission. Politics and religion were the two main factors but there were others that were not mentioned. Unless Lhasa was prepared to admit their presence and their mission and grant them Tibetan passports permitting their residence, their position in Tsakalo seemed untenable.

* * *

It is very probable, in the first place, that had Père Nussbaum not been in residence at Tsakalo the American missionaries might not have been allowed into Tibetan country. With the German priest already in occupation, and the arrival of a company of Norwegian and American missionaries, the Lhasa Government was taken by surprise and at a loss just what to do. There was another factor that somewhat disturbed the Lhasa authorities—the American and Norwegian missionaries were young and had great ambitions for the conquest of the Land of the Lamas; Gartok and Chiamdo were already down on their maps, and with the friendly attitude of the Lhasa appointed officials, they saw themselves preaching the "good news" all over the Forbidden Land. Apparently ten of the sixteen are now in Batang and in a somewhat difficult situation. Dr. and Mrs. Bare had so far not left Tsakalo.

Père Nussbaum of the Missions Etrangers has now the privilege and the honour of being the only foreign missionary in the Forbidden Land. There are missionaries resident in Amdo, Jarong and Kham, nominally Tibetan country; and there are missionaries all round the Roof of the World, but Père Nussbaum of the French mission is actually the only foreigner and teacher of another religion within the Land of the Lamas. That Lamaism tolerates his presence is no sign whatever that the country is slowly opening up to the influence of Christianity. Père Nussbaum would be forceably or politely invited to leave Lamaland by the Lhasa Government if it could be done without any loss of face or prestige.

His position within Tibet is somewhat anomalous from any standpoint. Trade agents and government officials come and go, but Nussbaum's position is now something like Tennyson's little brook. Under what passport is this lonely père now seeking protection; or is he simply trusting God and keeping his powder dry? He is a German in a French mission, with a Chinese passport, and resident within the Frobidden Land. Has the Lhasa Government, as well as permitting him domicile, offered him protection? If an injustice is done to this père where is his court of appeal? Will Lhasa judge his case in any local uprising? It may be that the lamas are simply waiting till this poor, lonely père dies and then call the deal closed. It may be, however, that the arrangement is with the mission and not with the local priest and in that case the Missions Etrangers is a permanency in what is known as the Great Closed Land. And if so can the Lhasa government grant to the French what it withholds from other nationals? No doubt the lama authorities have discussed the question from all points, and time will only reveal what they still have up their sleeve.

* * *

The financial situation in Batang, from a missionary standpoint, demands something like aeroplane assistance. So far no ordinary means of transportion can be found. We have been trying for nearly one year to get $500 in to a young evangelist there and have so far not succeeded. The new arrivals in Batang are calling out for coin, more coin, and not a dollar can be sent in. From a commercial standpoint Batang has no trade whatever and financially there is no money in the place. Formerly, when the garrison was paid, there were thousands of dollars on the street and money was not so difficult. But with no commercial enterprise between the two border cities missionary residence in Batang becomes quite a precarious adventure.

* * *

That Tibet, the Land of the Lamas, will ever be an open country, is very doubtful. Where there is Chinese rule throughout Sikang the lamas are more or less friendly and offer little if any opposition. This is not so, however, on the right bank of the Yangtze. There the lama rules and no one else. The lama may be friendly to the visitor, that is provided he speaks his language, but he makes no effort to disguise the fact of his deep and abiding hatred towards his religion. Lamaism and Christianity have no common ground and no common point of contact, being as some people maintain, one a system of light and the other a system of darkness; one advocating social intercourse, the other a "closed door."

The Missions Etrangers has just closed its yearly conference. Once, each year, these lonely fellows gather together and discuss the difficulties and problems that confront them in their work. This year, including Bishop Valentin, fifteen French priests met in conference and while the meetings were in session the old bishop, who has been on the frontier for over 60 years, would sometimes drop in to see how things were going. He could not hear very much and it was a disturbing element to try to make him do so. Among those attending the conference this year was a distinguished Tibetan scholar. Père Gore has made an intensive study of the Tibetan language for 30 years and is now probably the greatest language authority on the frontier. He is the author of several books on Tibet, including a number of books dealing with the Tibetan language. He is now working on a Tibetan dictionary and revising some of his other books. Attending the conference were three French priests who had been recently home in France: Père Gore who has just returned, Père Gratton (the angler priest) and Père Charrier from Mowkung. Individually these fellows look strong and fit and their lives of loneliness in no way affect their cheerfulness. They are men of character and determination and the chairman of this Catholic Conference must be a man of tact, wisdom and resourcefulness.

Fortunately they have all these characteristics in Bishop Valentin; but with them his task is not easy as these priests come to the conference from mission stations where they have been monarchs of all they survey. Eleven months in a lonely outpost in no way inclines these men to an imperious "sit down please." There is, however, about them a healthy cheerfulness which makes these yearly conferences a time of inspiration and refreshment.

Wisdom from the Weeklies

Emergency Reserves In view of the vital importance of adequate and uninterrupted supplies of raw materials in the prosecution of modern war, and the impossibility of predicting how much temporary dislocation of transport might be caused by air bombardment and submarine attack, points out a writer in "Truth," I find it in my heart to wish that Britain had pursued with more vigour the policy of building up emergency reserves of essential commodities. According to the published figures of warehouse stocks, we have less than three months' supplies of cotton, wheat and flour, less than two months' supplies of sugar, and barely six weeks' supplies of copper and zinc; and, in relation to normal consumption, stocks of tea, rubber and lead are lower still. It is idle to blame dealers for accepting these buying orders. My regret is that we should have allowed our stocks to fall so low. One is aware that there are large undisclosed reserves of petroleum at the call of the Service Departments; but touching other commodities, if the trade figures tell the whole story, we seem to have been caught napping.

* * *

Lancashire Tragedy Five hundred Lancashire cotton mills—200 spinning mills and 300 weaving mills—have gone out of existence, observes "Time and Tide." Over 18½ millions of spindles and 326,470 looms have been smashed up or melted up or shipped abroad or let rust. Over a quarter of a million cotton operatives are cotton operatives no longer. Do those facts convey any sort of a picture? Or these—that Lancashire's looms are now no more than in 1882 nor its spindles than 1890? That Lancashire's cotton trade, and its exports before the Great War totalled in value more than all the rest of Britain's exports put together is back to where it was fifty years ago? A veritable Moscow of a retreat. Can you see in your mind's eye the lads playing football where factories stood? Or grown men going to the pictures five times a week at tuppence a time to drug themselves with the product of Hollywood? Or this hideous mess of mills with broken windows, yards strewn with rusty metal and stone which looks as though a war has gone that way; as it has. But there have been sent new industries to Lancashire—gas-masks to Blackburn, aeroplanes to Manchester and munitions to Chorley. We're spending millions in Lancashire on the machinery of war. True enough. This lifeline of cordite has been thrown. The war has wrung a gesture from those who were immovable in the cause of peace. The forlorn picture has had a small daub of vermilion thrust on it here and there. Think you it's much improved?

* * *

Treasure Trove "Treasure Trove" is an expression which must strike a chord in the most unresponsive imagination, conjuring up as it does visions of brass-bound chests crammed with "pieces of eight" and the fabulous wealth of legendary El Dorado, asserts "Horse and Hound." Somehow one does not associate these things with the quiet countryside of England, yet the verdict of a Suffolk Coroner's Court has decided that the collection of gold and silver plate and jewels found during the excavation of a Saxon "Burial ship" at Sutton Hoo shall become the property of the owner of the property upon which it was found. Usually the Coroner's Court is a place of mourning; occasionally the quiet surroundings of the local schoolroom or courthouse become the setting for a story of tragedy and heartbreak. The lighter side of a Coroner's duty is, however, the deciding of the ownership of the occasional treasures which come to light, sometimes quite accidentally during building or other operations. This latest find contains massive silver plate from Constantinople bearing the hall mark of the Emperor Anastasius, and from a collector's point of view is in many respects unique. The Court had to decide whether the property had been abandoned by its owner in such a manner that he intended to part with it altogether, and thus became the property of the first finder, or whether it was "treasure trove" in which case it was the property of the Crown. The jury decided that as the burial had been the property of the warrior with whom it was buried, publicly and without secrecy, it therefore became the property of the first finder.

Looping The Loop Watching an aeroplane doing aerobatics high up in the sky, the layman on the ground may often speculate on the precise degree of skill required. Major Oliver Stewart, who used to be a test pilot for the Government has cleared up some points on Aerobatics, according to the "Listener." When an aeroplane does some aerobatics it looks rather as if the pilot had had a glass of champagne and was overflowing with exuberance and couldn't resist expressing it. Aerobatics can be an outlet for high spirits, but a person who can fly need not necessarily be able to do them, however many glasses of champagne he has had. Some of the ablest pilots have never flown upside down in their lives and never will intentionally. Aerobatics take a lot of learning. They are difficult. And they are rather like playing a musical instrument; the more you know about it, the more critical you become and the less likely you are to be satisfied. Take an ordinary loop, for instance. The French pilot Pegoud demonstrated it before the War; he was the greatest aerobatic pilot the world has known. That ordinary loop is looked on as the first aerobatic which every club member does directly he has a few hours solo on his log book. It looks easy. Most people—including many pilots—think it easy. Yet it all depends on the standard you require. To go up and pull a machine round in the way one sees every day, may be morris dancing—or all-in wrestling—but it's certainly not aerobatics. An ordinary loop is actually a most difficult manoeuvre; more difficult, for instance, than the supposedly more difficult, advanced inverted spin. To get it right every time, the machine describing a perfect circle, and to do so with any machine, takes practice and an enormous lot of it. The general procedure is to let the aeroplane gain speed. If it is a light aeroplane it will probably have its nose put down for a bit. Then, when speed has been gained, the stick is eased gently back and the machine watched intently so as to keep it exactly straight. Some pilots even today look straight ahead as they go round, so that the ground falls away out of sight under the nose and for a time they see nothing but sky. With that method an accurate loop every time is an impossibility. You cannot judge what the machine is doing unless you keep a reference in sight—that's why blind flying is difficult. So if there are no clouds you must look along a wing and watch the horizon tumbling round. With practice—and lots of it—you learn to interpret the horizon's movement in terms of the attitude of your machine and to keep it exactly straight and on a perfect circle. Then there are loops and loops; the rocket loop, in which the machine streaks up vertically for a long way and then just turns over on a small radius loop at the top; there is the slow loop, which gives or should give a perfect circle; there is the engine-off loop and there is the inverted loop. Two loops side by side, one ordinary, and one inverted, make the beautiful but rare aerobatic called the "spectacles."

British Aircraft Attack German Warships

Raid in Heligoland Bight Successful; French Now Hold 50 German Villages in Saar Regions; R.A.F. Photographs Tell Siegfried Line Secrets

London, Sept. 30.

ROYAL Air Force units yesterday attacked ships of the German Fleet in Heligoland Bight. Despite formidable anti-aircraft fire, the attacks wer pressed home at a low altitude. The official announcement concludes by saying "some of our aircraft have not yet returned." The raid in admitted in a German news agency release in Berlin which says six British warplanes made the attack which was "without result" and on their flight back, the British planes were attacked by German chasers. There was a short air battle, the German statement adds and claims five British aeroplanes were shot down, all falling into the sea.

The skill of Royal Air Force pilots has provided British Headquarters in France with a remarkable series of photographs, showing in clearest detail some of the most strongly fortified zones of the Siegfried Line, the Air Ministry announced today. At only 600 feet, they flew for miles along the line, took close-ups of the emplacements and tank traps, noted different types of camouflage, located the network of communication lines. None of the aircraft was attacked by gunfire or German fighters, the announcement claims. They flew so low, it is stated, that many gunners must have thought that they were German planes and Germans engaged in camouflaging a sun waved a greeting at one machine. "They might not have been so cheerful," comments the Air Ministry, "if they had recognized the machine as a British bomber."

One group of R.A.F. planes flying over the line at 21,000 feet, the announcement concludes, was spotted, and greeted with anti-aircraft fire. The shooting was very accurate, and several shells burst uncomfortably near.

French Take 50 German Villages

The French have now taken 50 German villages, four of which have populations of over 6,000. Total French losses since the beginning of the war are less than those of one local operation of the kind carried out during the last war.

Aircraft reconnaissances indicate a continual massing of the Germans at Kehl, opposite Strasbourg, and in the Freiburg-Lake Constance-Basle triangle, where there appears to be greater activity than at the northern end of the line.

If the Germans are planning a flank attack, according to observers here, it is a military axiom that it will come from a weaker direction, hence it is conjectured that the main German offensive may be launched via Belgium or Holland.—Reuter.

Friday Night Very Quiet

Paris, Sept. 30.

There were no incidents on the Western Front last night, the official General communque announced this morning. Patrols were active in some sectors.—Havas.

Saarbruecken Hemmed In

Paris, Sept, 30.

Saarbruecken is reported today to be surrounded on three sides. "It will fall like ripe fruit which the tree cannot hold," says one French military commentator. "Slowly and methodically, despite all German attempts to create a diversion, French troops are continuing their general operation the aim of which is to invest the central salient of the Siegfried line, which lies at Saarbruecken. French pressure is being exercised in the form of a pincer movement against the central fortification of the town."

The French High Command, which is at present trying out certain tactical principles, is in no hurry to launch a large-scale offensive against the Siegfried line, according to well-informed French circles. The period of "strategic waiting" is expected to continue until the Germans really begin operations on the Western Front. The last local attack by French troops is said to have again proved the principle that a strong artillery attack takes ground and that infantry occupies it.

"After a striking demonstration of their power," French artillery and infantry are claimed to have crept a mile nearer the Siegfried Line over a five-mile sector. The Germans are alleged to have found it impossible to hold their ground.

French and British aeroplanes are stated to have carried out reconnaissance flights well behind the Siegfried Line, "out-witting German fighters."

The latest French war communique records "enemy artillery firing in the region east of the Saar, notably south of Zweibruecken and Primasens." It adds that there was activity on both sides by reconnaissance and observation aircraft.—Reuter.

French Make New Gains

Paris, Sept. 30.

French troops drove their way a mile deeper into Germany along a five-mile front in the Moselle River sector near Perl yesterday, the French High Command announced last night.

French troops also were said to be advancing in their offensives in the Saarbruecken area "with minimum losses."

The immediate French objective in the Saar sector is to command both banks of the Saar River, the announcement said. French batteries have been placed in such advantageous positions, the announcement added, that the Germans have been forced to evacuate all Saar mining regions.

French reconnaissance planes, flying deep into German territory, were said to have reported heavy concentrations of German troops gathering behind the front. German anti-aircraft, the French announcement said, damaged several French planes but all planes succeeded in returning to their bases. —United Press.

Aim of Nazi Canards Exposed

London, Sept. 30.

The "Daily Herald" today exposed German claims of the sinking of British aircraft carriers as an attempt to find the location of the British plane carriers.

The German radio station "reported the sinking of H.M.S. Glorious by aerial bombs but the Glorious is afloat and unscathed." The object of the Germans was apparently a bid to have the British Admiralty refute the claims by saying that the vessels were afloat and name their location, the journal said.—United Press.

Turkey's Warning For Allies

War with Soviets will Bring Severance of All Ties with Democracies

Ankara, Sept. 03.

It is reliably reported that Turkey has notified France and Britain that her mutual assistance obligations to them would be automatically annulled in case the Allies became involved in a war with Russia.

Final agreement has been reached on the texts of mutual assistance and economic agreements between Turkey, Great Britain and France, according to persistent rumours in diplomatic circles in Ankara.

It is reported that the signature of the agreements will take place immediately after the return from Moscow of M. Sakru Saracoglu, Turkish Foreign Minister.

Responsible circles in Ankara insist that the new Soviet-Turkish pact does not impair Turkey's pledges to Britain and France, and that Turkey's agreements with Russia, Britain and France all aim at maintaining the status quo in the Balkans and the Black Sea and ensuring security in the Mediterranean.—Reuter.

Final Agreement Reached

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Paris, Sept. 30.

Sources close to the Foreign Office declared today that the final touches were being put to the French-Turkish Accord, but only the date for initialling or signing it remained to be set.—Reuter.

M. Stalin Still Plays His Own Game with Nazi

Britain and France Never to Submit to "Peace Ultimatum"

Paris, Sept. 29.

A welter of reports from Moscow, Berlin, the Balkan capitals and London was sifted through by French observers today and the main points of the complex European situation were considered to be that Soviet Russia, despite new accords with Germany, continues to follow an independent policy; that M. Josef Stalin, although in partnership with Herr Adolf Hitler, still pursues a policy separate from Berlin's in the Balkans; and that the U.S.S.R. will undoubtedly give great help to the Reich, but not unlimited for all of which Herr Hitler will have to pay.

In their lengthy review of the European angle, the observers forecast a concerted "peace offensive" as the next Soviet-German move, with nations friendly to the two dictatorships supporting this move. As both countries have already announced their determination to have no other Power intervene in settlement of the Polish problem, this "peace offensive" would be stopped dead in its tracks, the French quarters continued. France and Great Britain would not even listen to the Soviet-German terms.

Polish Envoy Stated Case

The attitude of France and Britain was symbolized in the radio address of the Polish Ambassador, M. Jules Lukasiewicz, this evening when he emphasized that the allies had pledged themselves to refuse any separate peace without Poland's consent and that Poland could never submit to the "preposterous Soviet-German plans."

After a close study of the new political accord signed in Moscow, the same quarters stated that since the area around Warsaw was left to Germany, a buffer Polish State might yet be created under German control, with Warsaw as the capital.

Alluding to the economic accord also signed in Moscow today, these observers admitted that Soviet Russia and Germany might increase their commercial exchanges to a new record total, but no unlimited exchanges were foreseen, they pointed out. Taking oil, most precious in Germany, as an example, they recalled that the record year for Soviet oil exports to Germany was 1932 and then only 517,000 tons, or one-sixtieth of the Reich's total war needs, were sold. Germany's own production scaled but 3,000,000 tons per year and, moreover, she failed to secure the Polish oilfields, which are located in East Galicia and have fallen to the U.S.S.R.

Stalin Remains Enigmatic

Concrete indications that Soviet commercial aid to Germany would continue to be limited rather puzzled French quarters who wondered as to M. Stalin's true intentions, which still remain shrouded in mystery.

Economic relations between Russia and Britain, who is the U.S.S.R. chief buyer, were still ruptured although only limited Soviet economic resources were placed at the Reich's disposal. Moreover, M. Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador in London, was understood to have informed Lord Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, that his Government was ready to reopen economic parleys.

All these factors put together could lead to but one conclusion at present, French observers summed up. Moscow was still following a policy altogether separate from the Reich's, and this policy was not as yet clearly understood.

It is also noted that while German economic parleys with Rumania and Yugoslavia had not yet resulted in accords, Soviet Russia had improved her commercial relations with Rumania while Yugoslavia was to send a delegate to Moscow in the very near future. Soviet-Bulgarian, negotiations were also reported to be envisaged.—Havas.

Aga Khan Makes Appeal To India's People

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Air Raid Alarm Over London

These pictures, radioed from London to San Francisco and brought to the Far East by Clipper planes, show London in the throes of its first air raid alarm. Above, a group of military preparing gun emplacements, and, below, a crowd caught in a moment of excitement when a squadron of British planes, roaring over the capital, were mistaken for German planes by the crowds. Men and women threw themselves down flat as they had been taught to do, but no bombs fell. An anxious mother can be seen sheltering her child with her own body.

Chinese Put Up Resistance To Drive on Changsha

Offensive Launched on Han River in Hopes of Relieving Pressure in Hunan Japanese Advance

Chungking, Sept. 30.

IN an effort to ease Japanese pressure on Changsha, capital of Hunan province, Chinese forces in north central Hunan, on the west bank of the Han River, crossed the river and launched a general offensive on September 27 against Japanese positions on the east bank, according to a Chinese field dispatch reaching here today.

Chinese forces opposite Chungtsiang, after crossing the Han River, the dispatch continues, occupied Changshoutien, and their artillery units are at present shelling Japanese positions at the southern suburbs of Chungtsiang.

Chinese forces are also attacking the vicinity of Yingshan and Suihsien, west of Wushengkwan, on the Peiping-Hankow Railway north-west of Hankow, the dispatch adds.

Another Chinese column is said to be advancing on Sinyang and Pingchingkwan, on the Peiping-Hankow Railway. Meanwhile, it is reported, Japanese forces north of Changsha yesterday resumed a southward push in two columns, one of which, advancing to the south along the Canton-Hankow Railway, reached Santsiehchiao.

Another column, advancing along the ancient highway to Changsha, is said to have reached Fulingpu. Japanese aircraft yesterday bombed Siangtang and Chuchow, while Japanese reconnaissance 'planes cruised above Hengyang, Chiyang and Lingling.

Severe fighting is going on in the vicinity of Sianying and Paishui, close to the Canton-Hankow Railway, states a Chinese field dispatch received here today from the north Hunan front.

To the east of the railway, fighting is said to be in progress in Pingkiang, where Japanese forces are attempting to advance on Changsha along the Hankow-Changsha main highway.

The Chinese forces are said to be putting up a stubborn resistance, with a high commander personally directing operations at the front.—Reuter.

Vanguards Along Railway

Hongkong, Sept. 30.

Vanguards of Japanese units had advanced close to Fulinpu, about 20 kilometres north-east of Changsha, along the Yochow-Changsha Highway, according to a Chinese report from Changsha today.

Fierce fighting was raging at Hsinkaishih, south of the Mi River, and near Paishui on the Yuehan Railway, according to the dispatch.

The Chinese admitted suffering heavy losses in the Japanese attacks near Paishui, the message said.

With the steady approach of Japanese detachments toward Changsha the Chinese military started dynamiting the city on Friday morning, the report said.

Military establishments at Changsha had been almost wiped out as a result of incessant mass raids by Japanese aeroplanes, according to a message from the Hunan capital today.

At least 200 hits on objectives had been scored by bombs dropped on the city since September 27, the message said.

A ferry landing on the bank of the Siang River in the eastern suburbs was wrecked.

Morale of the Chinese troops defending Changsha was deteriorating, according to the dispatch.—Domei.

Chinese troop concentrations resisting Japanese army forces in Kiangsi suffered heavy losses in a series of raids by Japanese naval aircraft assisting infantry units, the headquarters of the China Sea Fleet announced in a communique.

Several concentrations of more than 1,000 troops in each were attacked by the raiders at Kanfang, Chihkangshih, Shihchieh and Woklao.

Kwangsi Bases Bombed

Heavy losses were inflicted upon godowns used for the storage of military supplies and wharves used in their transportation along the Hsiyang River in southern Kwangsi when Japanese naval aircraft raided Kwangsi on Thursday, a communique issued by the Japanese China Seas Fleet yesterday afternoon stated.

A motorized transport column, engaged in moving fuel, was also set on fire by bombing on the highway between Nanning and Piyang, the announcement added.

"Great results" were achieved by a Japanese naval air unit which raided the headquarters of a Chinese Peace Preservation Corps near Chaochow, Kwangtung, also on Thursday, according to the communique.

German Bund Leader in U.S. Taken In Custody under $50,000 Bail

Fritz Kuhn Charged with Embezzlement, Evasion of Arrest; Communist Party in U.S. May Be Banned

New York, Sept. 20.

The Fuehrer of the Nazi German-American Bund, Fritz Kuhn, was arrested today by order of District Attorney, Mr. Thomas A. Dewey, on the charge of having embezzled Bund funds.

This is the second time that Herr Kuhn is taken into custody, for he was arrested some time ago on this embezzlement charge, but was later set free on $5,000 bail. Today, bail for his provisional release was set at $50,000, one of the highest ever set by local courts.

Unable to pay the bail, Herr Kuhn was taken into custody. A second charge against him was that he sought to flee from the country while being sought by the police.

His arrest severely disrupted Herr Kuhn's announced plans to review tomorrow a monster Bund parade to be held in the German quarter of New York as part of a monster demonstration. Semi-military detachments with swastika flags and banners were to participate in the march past.

Herr Kuhn also planned to hold a torch parade tomorrow evening on the lines of similar processions in Berlin.—Havas.

When he demanded that Mr. William Foster, prominent American Communist working with Mr. Earl Browder, head of the Communist Party in the United States, supply a list of officials of the Communist Party, the Representative said, "the Committee will issue a list. The Communist Party will be disbanded, and the United States will make Communism illegal just as France has done."—United Press.

Sweden Protests on U-Boat Action

Spy Scare Sweeps Over Norway as More Vessels Are Sunk by Germans

Berlin, Sept. 30.

A communique issued today by the German High Command states that German destroyers in the Kattegat and Skagerrak have searched 45 steamers for contraband during the past two days. Some of the steamers searched have been captured, the communique adds.—Reuter.

Sweden Protests to Reich

London, Sept. 30.

The "Exchange Telegraph" reported today that the Swedish Foreign Office at Stockholm presented a serious protest to Germany on the torpedoeing of the Swedish steamer Nyland on Thursday off the coast of Norway. The crew of the vessel was rescued and landed at Tananger. The ship was the third Swedish ship to be sunk by German submarines and mines in less than a week.—United Press.

Swedish Shipping Paralyzed

Stockholm, Sept. 30.

Almost all Swedish shipping throughout the world is reported to be at a standstill owing to the submarine menace. It is considered that the Swedish trade delegation now in London should press for a more effective convoy system.

Swedish shipowners complain that there is a widespread espionage system operating in northern ports, and that, unless it is stamped out, Sweden's export trade will swiftly be destroyed. They state that German spies report the departure of every ship. The comander of one of the Swedish vessels sunk by a German submarine states that the North Sea is "swarming with submarines," and that, by virture of their co-operation with the German Air Force, it is almost impossible for ships to escape detection.

The sinking of the Swedish vessel Nyland yesterday by a submarine off the Norwegian coast is described as inexplicable, as she was a neutral ship which left a neutral port for a neutral destination. Newspapers here declare that the naval war has apparently shifted to Scandinavian waters, and add that this is possibly a confirmation of Great Britain's claim that her anti-submarine measures are proving most effective.

The captain of the Nyland said that while he was aboard the submarine, he was convinced that she was receiving full information from land in regard to shipping movements.

Other men connected with shipping declare that a widespread and efficient spy system is in operation.

It is noticeable in Stockholm that certain foreigners, hitherto of economical habits, are now spending more freely.

The Antwerp correspondent of "Paris Soir" states that 5,300 tons of iron ore consigned to Liege steel works went down with the Nyland. The sinking of the ship, he adds, has created considerable feeling in Antwerp, and shippers are suggesting a protest by the governments of the Oslo group.—Reuter.

Spy Scare Sweeps Norway

Oslo, Sept. 30.

A spy scare swept over Norway yesterday as news reached here that the steamers Takstaas and Jern were torpedoed in the North Sea and the steamer Solaas was sunk by a mine at Skagerrak.

It was believed the ships were sunk as the result of the activity of spies in Scandinavian ports informing Berlin of ship movements. Authorities in Norwegian ports tightened their surveillance.

The crews of the Takstaas and the Jern were warned in advance before the vessels were torpedoed and were allowed to escape in life-boats to Suengland. The crew of the Solaas was rescued by a Swedish steamer. —United Press.

North Sea Infested

Oslo, Sept. 29.

"The North Sea today is a hotbed of submarines," the captain of the torpedoed Norwegian freighter, Jern, declared today "It is very difficult to cross the Sea without escort for a long line of German submarines lie in wait for merchant ships and cooperate with German planes in attacking them," he added.—Havas.

Danish Anti-Mine Patrol

Berne, Sept. 29.

During the First War, Denmark organized anti-mine patrols and destroyed more than 10,000 mines in the seas round her peninsular mainland. Today, the Danish authorities decided, after a lapse of 21 years, to resume the anti-mine sea patrols.

Reporting the news, the "Neue Zurcher Zeitung" declared that Denmark intended to wage a "vigorous campaign" against floating mines, German and British, in the seas to the west and south of her country.—Havas.

Soviet Assistance to Reich Can Only Be Very Limited

German Foreign Minister Understood to Have Failed to Get Military Alliance with Reds

London, Sept. 30.

WHAT practical assistance the Soviet-German Agreement will give to Germany continues to be closely studied here. Soviet trade returns show that Russian exports to Germany between 1931 and last year dropped from approximately the equivalent of £30,000,000 to £4,000,000, while German exports to Russia dropped from roughly £47,000,000 to £2,000,000. Russia's production last year of pig-iron, copper, lead, aluminium, zinc, tin and nickel was insufficient to meet the increased home demand. Russia's vast resources, observers here add, doubtless could be developed under the direction of German experts, but this cannot be done in a few months.

Military observers do not expect the appearance of Russian troops on the Western Front, though possibly tanks and aeroplanes may be lent. Some observers even declare, M. Stalin has obtained everything he wanted without fighting, so "why should he fight now?" Naval critics state that the Soviet-Esthonian agreement, granting to Russia naval and aerial bases on Esthonian islands, must be disagreeable news to Germany, as it gives Russia control of the important Gulf of Riga, which Germany vainly tried to capture in 1915, and thus a dominating position in the Baltic. —Reuter.

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Paris, Sept. 30.

"Sensational documents" relating to the Soviet-German pact have been communicated to the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee by M. Beranger, the committee chairman, according to reports circulating here. No details of the documents have been made known.—Reuter.

Military Pact Proved?

Paris, Sept. 30.

The French Government last night announced possession of documents purporting to confirm the existence of a Soviet-German military alliance. French officials at the same time warned the nation that it would be a "mortal mistake" to accept Russo-German peace overtures.—United Press.

Von Ribbentrop Failed?

Moscow, Sept. 30.

Notwithstanding the veiled threat in the Soviet-German agreement to "consult on necessary measures" should Great Britain and France turn down a German offer of peace, most observers here are of the opinion that there is no military alliance between the two countries.

If this is true, it is added, Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop's mission failed because a firm Anglo-French refusal to consider a peace offer from M. Josef Stalin and Herr Hitler, the Soviet and German dictators, would leave Germany almost completely isolated.

Most competent observers are convinced that the Soviet-Esthonian pact is aimed at a possible future German attack rather than at the complete domination of Esthonia.

German Revolution Desired?

All interest is now centred on the question how far the Russo-German agreement, with its promised supply of Russian war materials against German manufactures, may affect the progress of the war. The question of transporting huge quantities of Russian raw materials over long distances overland presents one difficulty. Another is Russia's own internal requirements, particularly in oil, the increased output of which in the past eight years has been fully absorbed by home demand.

Apart from practical considerations, the view is widely held that Russia expects the war to culminate in a revolution in Germany, whereupon she will make her rear a Communist state. The question then is whether Russia would like to see Germany collapse quickly or, by partially feeding Germany with supplies, to prolong the agony with a view to making the crash worse when it comes.—Reuter.

Observations in Moscow

Moscow, Sept. 29.

The economic and political accords signed by Germany and Soviet Russia today did not constitute a military alliance in themselves, but contained the seeds for a military pact in the future, diplomatic quarters here declared today.

Moreover, since the political accord, which demarcates Soviet and German territories in Poland, asserts that neither country will tolerate third party intervention in settling the Polish problem, the Western Powers were being threatened. Another threat to France and Great Britain, the same diplomatic circles declared, was contained in the common German-Soviet statement published in an annex to the demarcation agreement, stating, "If the efforts of both Governments to end the state of war between Germany on the one side and Britain and France on the other are not successful, Britain and France will be considered responsible for the prolongation of the war and Germany and Russia will consult each other to take necessary measures." The annex also declares that Russia and Germany, if need be, will seek the help of other nations to reach their objectives as soon as possible.

Soviet Want Long War

Foreign observers, commenting on these annexed statements, said they wondered whether the annex meant Russia understood it was impossible for peace to be reached and simply wished to support Germany to draw out the conflict. Other observers said the Soviet-German treaty demarcating respective territories in Poland created a "permanent link" between the two countries, which have become mutually interested in forestalling any Polish renaissance.

The commercial agreement, they continued, seek economic co-operation for many years with both countries co-ordinating their production and economic development so as to have Soviet raw materials go to Germany while German industrial equipment goes to the U.S.S.R. Commercial exchanges, under the treaty, are to be the greatest ever carried out between the two nations, but are not unlimited. They are to scale the record total of 1,100,000,000 marks worth of trade in 1931.—Reuter.

Germans Get More Of Poland

Russia Gives Up All Polish Minority for Ethnical Boundaries

Moscow, Sept. 29.

While she retains the East Galician oil fields of Poland, Soviet Russia loses practically all of the Polish industrial areas to Germany, according to a new demarcation agreement signed tonight by M. Viacheslav Molotoff and Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, respectively Soviet and German Foreign Ministers.

The temporary demarcation line established in Poland on September 22, shortly after the first entry of Soviet troops, is rather substantially altered by the final treaty signed tonight. New Soviet-German frontiers in Polish territory follow more closely ethnical divisions in the land, and the U.S.S.R. obtains rule over all Ukrainians and White Russians while the Reich secures sway over territory the population of which is of purely Polish stock.

Adolf Hitler gets back the important towns of Llublin, which served a while as the Polish capital, and Siedlce, both of which had been ceded temporarily to Russia.

All Warsaw to Be German

Warsaw and the Vistula River now are clear of Soviet government and German troops in Warsaw no longer will see the Red Army in Praga, suburb on the east bank of the Vistula.

Germany also obtains a small area in the Suwalki region, between Lithuania and East Prussia, while Soviet Russia keeps Wilno which will probably be handed over to Lithuania.

Wilno is an important railway centre with five trunk lines branching out from it like the spokes of a wheel. One of the lines runs to Lithuania and another to Esthonia, with whom Moscow has just concluded a dominating pact of mutual assistance.

Soviets Keep Fortresses

M. Josef Stalin also retains, by the terms of tonight's pact, the cities of Grodno and Bialystok and the fortresses of Brest-Litovsk, Lwow and Prazemysl.

Except for Lwow's textile and sugar plans and the oil wells in the Stanislawow, Drohobysz and Tarnopol areas, almost all Polish industrial centres fall within the German part of Poland.

The new demarcation line runs almost due north and south from Grodno, just south of the southernmost tip of Lithuania, through Bialystok and Brest-Litovsk, and on down to Przemysl, toward the southeast, and the former Carpathic Ukrainian border.—Havas.

Poles Hold Moscow Decision Invalid

Formal Denunciation Made by Ambassadors In London and Paris

London, Sept. 29.

All Poland considered German-Soviet reservation of rights to divide Polish territory between them as an "act of brutal violence" and, as such, to be "null and void," the Polish Embassy here proclaimed today.

In an official communique, it stated: "Count Eduard Raczynski, Polish Ambassador, called on the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, this afternoon and lodged a protest against the agreement reported to have been concluded at Moscow between Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia on September 29, by which these two powers reserved the right to divide between themselves the territory of the Polish Republic. THE STAGE

"Prince Igor"

With its scintillating scenes, the statuesque grace of the choreographic symphonies and the splendid music of Borodine, so ably interpreted by a host of singers and musicians, there could have been no better choice than "Prince Igor" to open the new season at the Lyceum Theatre last night. Presented by Le Ballet Russe, this production was enhanced throughout by a cast that was perfect in every degree. The ballet scenes were beautiful and the dancers as lithe and as graceful as before.

The singers gave to the beautiful music of this piece a depth of feeling that speaks well for future performances in this city. The orchestra, too, added its part in no uncerain style and the result was a perfect combination which brought pleasure to all.

Taking the honours of this splendid performance were the ballet scenes so ably interpreted by the full cast of the Le Ballet Russe, with Miss Audrey King and Shevlugin, both of whom displayed their wonderful grace in the "Don Quixote" ballet scene. There were others, too, who reaped in honours, not the least of these being Nikitina, Baranova and Kniazeff, little Joy Blackwood, Yanover and many more. Of the singers Speransky and Sayapin were splendid, while the orchastra under Mr. A. Sloutsky gave of its best. A fine start to the season.—R.S.

Morrison, Minister of Food, stated in a broadcst last night, on the Ministry's storage plans, that the Ministry had large reserves of sugar and had just made arrangements with goodwill Empire sugar producers for the purchase of more than a year's requirements—over 1,000,000 tons.

In addition, there was the home crop, so that there was no possibility of a shortage.

There were always large stocks of tea in the country. Mr. Morrison said, but butter would not be so plentiful as in ordinary times, and they must use margarine as well.

Referring to the rationing scheme, the Minister said there would be no uncertainty, no waiting in queues and no prices beyond the reach of the small purse.—Reuter.

Serious Floods Occur In Yunnan

Railway to Indo-China Temporarily Stopped

Kunming, Sept. 30.

Serious floods are now reported from Lunan, situated 60 kilometres to the south-east of Iliang railway station.

The town was cut off when the flood waters inundated more than 1,000 houses, and swept over fields and roads, causing the destruction of more than 200 houses, and a heavy loss of life.

District Government rescue workers are working day and night to save the lives of those endangered by the floods. Heavy rainfall has caused the temporary suspension of the passenger service along the new Yunnan-Burma highway.

The service along the Kunming-Kweiyang highway, however, continues to operate normally.

Express and freight trains between Yunnan and Indo-China have ceased to operate owing to land-slides in Yunnan. A slow train service will be attempted in a couple of days.—Reuter.

Peace Only After China's Victory

Wang Chung-hui Explains Former Statement; America Can Be Mediator

Chungking, Sept. 30.

The possibility of a peaceful settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict was mentioned by Dr. Wang Chung-hui, Foreign Minister, in a statement today. Dr. Wang emphasized, however, that his statement should not give rise to any misinterpretation.

What should be stressed, he added, was that peace was possible "only when China has gained victory by attaining the objects of her war of resistance."

"It is my personal conviction," declared Dr. Wang, "that America is destined to play an important role in the Far East, and if she could bring about a just solution of the Sino-Japanese conflict on the basis of the Nine Power Treaty and of her Note to Japan of December 31, 1938, this would be in line with the policy we have hitherto pursued."

The National Government, Dr. Wang said in the earlier part of his statement, would continue the war of resistance against Japan until the final victory was attained.

"We are not only fighting for China's independence and integrity," he stated, "but also for the maintenance of international treaties, including the Nine Power Treaty.

"Until that end is achieved, we will not lay down our arms."—Reuter.

Water Charges Go Up 50 Per Cent.

Another Major Increase In Cost of Living Here Approved by S.M.C.

At the heels of the announcement that it had approved an increase in the surcharge on the gas tariff to 80 per cent., the Shanghai Municipal Council now states that it has allowed a 50 per cent. surcharge on water rates. This means another major increase in the local cost of living announced within two days.

The Council has recently had under consideration an application by the Shanghai Waterworks Co., Ltd., for permission to increase its revenue by the imposition of a surcharge of 50 per cent. on its tariff of charges in order to offset to some extent the greatly increased costs in local currency of operation and dividend requirements due to the fall in the exchange value of the Chinese dollar. Accompanying the company's application were summaries of estimated expenditure and revenue for 1939 based on an exchange rate of 3½d. as regards items for which exchange had not been settled at a higher rate, and at 4d. for the year 1940.

The estimates for 1939 showed that despite an increase in revenue over that anticipated the estimated net profit for the full year, after providing for the shortage in dividends for 1938 and the dividends on local currency preference shares but without providing for transfers to Reserve, would fall short, by a large sum, of the amount required in local currency for payment of the dividends stipulated in the company's franchise on its ordinary share capital. The estimates for 1940, reflecting the full effect of increased costs due to the low exchange level, disclosed a still more unfavourable position.

Recovery in Demand

The company referred to its letter of April 18, which was considered and accepted by the Council in May and to which publicity was given in June, wherein considerable improvement in its position as compared with that previously anticipated, due to the marked recovery in demand, was reported. At that time the company, whilst maintaining that an increase in the tariff was justified, expressed willingness to postpone its reconsideration for a further six months in view of the abnormal circumstances prevailing and in a desire to assist consumers. Since that date exchange had fallen from 8⅛d. to approximately 4d., thus necessitating a drastic revision of the estimates on which the company had made its proposal.

The company was therefore compelled to apply for a substantial increase in rates in the form of a surcharge of 50 per cent. on the existing tariff of charges and expressed its conviction that such increase was the minimum necessary to maintain service with any safety for the future. Further-more in making this request the Company has been influenced by the generally adverse conditions now obtaining in Shanghai.

Commenting on the company's application, the Treasurer reported that owing to the many variable factors involved it was apparent that the estimates for 1939 submitted with last year's application now needed radical revision. The estimates for 1939 and 1940 had been based on the actual results for the first half year of 1939 and allowance had been made for known increases in expenditure on account of exchange, for such other probable increases as might reasonably be anticipated and for the larger pumpage normally experienced during the second half year. The estimate of total revenue for 1939 appeared to be reasonable and that for 1940 had been based on the assumption that the demand then would be the same as for the current year. In this connection it was pointed out that the expenditure for 1940 had likewise been based on the assumption of the existing demand.

"Uncertain Conditions"

The Treasurer expressed himself as satisfied that the company's estimates had been reasonably computed having regard to past experience and prevailing uncertain conditions. He recommended that the 50 per cent. surcharge applied for by the company be approved in respect of accounts for consumption periods ending on and after November 1, 1939, subject to revision at any time and in any case prior to May 31, 1940.

This recommendation was endorsed by the Public Utilities Committee and approved by the Council.

Young Chinese Killed In Street Attack

Shot from Behind Walking In French Concession

Firing only one bullet, an unidentified Chinese shot and fatally wounded another Chinese in the open street at the intersection of Rue du Père Froc and Rue Amiral Bayle at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The sudden attack caused temporary consternation in the crowded neighbourhood, but the assassin escaped.

The victim, who died almost immediately, was named Ling Ya-sing, or Ling Yung, aged 29, an employee of a large Chinese spice factory. He was shot from behind, the bullet penetrating vital organs. He was unable to make a statement before he expired.

While the motive for the crime remains a mystery, the French Police are working on the theory of private revenge as the late Ling had no political associations.

Foreign Capital Invited

Asia Development Board Head Stresses Need for Co-operation in China

Japan would not reject the participation of third Power nationals in Japanese enterprises in China, Lieut.-Gen. Heisuke Yanagawa, Governor of the Asia Development Board, declared in an interview with newsmen at the Central China liaison office of the board.

Chinese participation in Japanese enterprises likewise was invited by Lieut.-Gen. Yanagawa.

"Some of the Chinese capitalists in Japanese-occupied areas still want no co-operation with the Japanese and refuse Japanese approaches seeking such co-operation," he said, "but as peace and order are being rapidly restored in occupied areas they should lend their efforts for the rehabilitation of various enterprises for the sake of the Chinese people's welfare.

"The view has prevailed in some quarters interpreting Sino-Japanese economic co-operation as a Japanese desire for economic hegemony, but Japan has no such intention whatever. On the contrary Japan welcomes very much the return of Chinese capital to Japanese-occupied areas, and she will not refuse the participation in Japanese enterprises of third Power nationals.

Hankow Office Possible

"The establishment of the headquarters of the Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese Expeditionary Forces to China and the organization of a new central Government by Mr. Wang Ching-wei will not affect the policies formulated by the Asia Development Board.

"If military operations permit, a Hankow office of the board may be opened."

Lieut.-Gen. Yanagawa will leave Shanghai for Amoy on the Hwashan Maru at 9 o'clock today.

He consulted vice-Admiral Shizue Tsuda, Director of the Central China office of the board, and later met Japanese leaders, the "Mainichi" said.

He called on Vice-Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese China Sea Fleet, aboard his flagship, the Idzumo. The latter subsequently returned the visit at the office of the board.

Lieut.-Gen. Yanagawa sent a representative to meet leaders of the Shanghai Special Municipality and officers of the Japanese defence force at the headquarters in Kiangwan, the paper said.

WEDDING

Kendall-Dillon

The wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Holy Trinity Cathedral of Mr. Irwin Henry ("Ken") Kendall, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G-I. Kendall, and Miss Patricia Cécile Dillon, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Percy Dillon. Dean A.C.S. Trivett officiated and the Cathedral was beautifully decorated with white blossoms and pink gladioli.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of heavy white brocade cut on Pompadour lines with a very wide skirt, the bodice having a high, heart-shaped neckline and long tight-fitting sleeves puffed at the shoulders. Her three-quarter length veil was of white tulle held in place with orange blossoms and she carried a Victorian posy, surrounded with silver, from which fell streamers of wide silver ribbon, the flowers being pale pink carnations and tuberoses.

The bridesmaid was Miss Elaine Habecost. She wore a bouffant dress of orchid-coloured taffeta, the bodice trimmed with incrustation embroidery and made with a petal neckline and short puffed sleeves trimmed with the embroidery. Her small hat was of violets and purple tulle and her Victorian posy was of violets tied with long, narrow silver ribbons. Mr. Noel Abbott acted as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Gerald Dickson and Dudley Wheeler.

The bride's mother was dressed in mauve crêpe cut on simple lines with a short coat to match. Her small hat and accessories were in a deeper shade of purple.

The bridegroom's mother wore a frock of flowered organdie made with short skirt and short sleeves. Her large white felt hat was trimmed with navy blue.

After the ceremony a reception was held at 416, Hongkong & Shanghai Bank Building, 12 The Bund, the residence of the bride's parents, at which the toast of the bride and bridegroom was proposed by Cmdr. F. H. E. Skyrme. The bride went away in a smart suit of shell pink sharkskin, her small toque and accessories being in mauve and pink.

"Municipal Rates" To Be Collected

"Special" Government Will Function in Outside Roads Areas as from Today

The Shanghai Special Municipality in Kiangwan will commence collecting the "municipal rate" today from all residents including foreigners living in the extra-Settlement road areas in the western district which are considered to be part of Chinese territory of the new city régime, it was authoritatively learned yesterday.

Officials of the Bureau of Finance of the new Chinese administration confirmed Chinese reports heralding the action and explained that foreigners living in the area would have to pay the tax. The tax to be thus collected was said to be the "municipal rate for the winter season only" indicating that the tax will be collected in other seasons during the year.

The "municipal rate" will be 11 per cent. of the rent in the case of a shop and 9 per cent. in the case of a residence, it was announced.

Foreigners Notified of Tax

The "Shun Pao" stated that on Friday officials of the new régime had already notified foreigners living in outside roads areas that their "house tax" must be paid to the "Bureau of Finance." The report asserted that the new régime had decided to collect the tax in order to increase its income because the "Reformed Government" at Nanking had stopped giving a monthly subsidy of $450,000. The number of Special Municipality police has been considerably increased and many residents in the Western district have moved out, it was stated.

Although these police had seemingly taken over traffic duty in the Western district, the report stated, they were not technically qualified for the job. Traffic signals in Edinburgh, Yu Yuen and Great Western Roads were still controlled by the Settlement officers while the others looked on, the report stated.

Some gambling houses and opium-smoking dens have been closed because of late there has been little business.

Anna Neagle's New "Edith Cavell"

Doubts as to Wisdom of Selection; Only Moderate U.S. Success of Royal Roles

The choice of a picture in which to introduce Anna Neagle, England's most important feminine film star, to America has been a difficult problem for Herbert Wilcox, her producer and director. Even now that the matter is settled, there remain doubts as to the wisdom of selecting "Nurse Edith Cavell" for the purpose—this was written by Thomas Brady from Hollywood to the New York "Times" before hostilities began.

Miss Neagle's first brush with transatlantic audiences, little as it is now remembered, happened in 1934. She appeared in the title role of the British-made film, "Nell Gwyn," which was a failure in the United States. The Hays office told Wilcox the picture would be perfectly acceptable of only Charles II married his famous mistress in the last reel.

When the producer, appalled, rejected the suggestion, the censors made 33 excisions, and the hopelessly mutilated picture played to empty houses. Three years later Miss Neagle played Queen Victoria in "Victoria the Great" and in its sequel, "Sixty Glorious Years." Both were tremendous successes in England, but "Victoria the Great" attracted only moderate attention here, and when "Sixty Glorious Years" played at the Radio City Music Hall, with Miss Neagle making personal appearances, the receipts were so bad that the picture was withdrawn from the American market. (It is now planned to re-issue it as "Queen of Destiny" following "Nurse Edith Cavell.")

The British film public makes peculiar distinctions, and that royal patronage, even by a king who never did a wise thing, is more important than discreet modesty in establishing respectability. Nobody objected to having Miss Neagle play Queen Victoria after she had played Nell Gwyn; but the protests against letting the recreator of Her Late Majesty portray a music hall entertainer were tremendous. Miss Neagle admits that she is thoroughly puzzled by the new divinity that hedges her.

Dramatic not Romantic

The protests were effective enough, though, to make Mr. Wilcox shelve the Marie Lloyd project. Instead he decided to revive a subject he had filmed twelve years ago under the title "Dawn" with Dame Sybil Thorndyke. The picture was a life of Edith Cavell, the English nurse who was shot as a spy in Belgium by the German army of occupation in 1915. The story is dramatic but not romantic, because Miss Cavell's life and character were virtually those of a religieuse.

In 1927 the picture was viewd with a good deal of alarm by the London Town Council as an influence toward international discord and was banned until Bernard Shaw rose to its defence, insisting that it was an attack not on Germany, but on militarism.

The same spirit, according to Mr. Wilcox, pervades the present script. The picture attempts, he says, to show that Nurse Cavell was innocent of the spying charges brought against her and that she was a victim of the military machine. New research on the picture has been exhaustive, with Miss Neagle herself doing much of the work. The memoirs of Brand Whitlock, American Minister to Brussels, and of Hugh Gibson, his secretary of legation; letters of nurses associated with Miss Cavell and an anonymous account of the affair by a German participant have been drawn upon heavily.

Two men who actually took part in the events will be seen in the picture—Whitlock's butler, Fernand Visele, and Guy Ignon, a prisoner in a cell adjacent to Miss Cavell's, who was condemned to die six days after her, but who was reprieved because of the furor her death created. Both men will appear as themselves. Visele was found in Hollywood working as butler for Joseph Schenck.

Although Mr. Wilcox made the RKO arrangement and came here to capitalize on what he describes as American selling methods, he, too, has been adamant in restraining the gentlemen whose help he came to seek. There has been and will be no "leg art" on Miss Neagle, he says; she does not go to spotlighted premieres, has never been seen at the Brown Derby or the Trocadero, and does not intend to endorse motor cars or cigarettes.

"Juarez"

Paul Muni soon is to be roadshown at the Grand Theatre.

Before and After the Theatre and Cinema

It is to be noted that the Gaiety now offer dinner and entertainment both before and after the theatre which, should be much to the palate of those who care for Russian and foreign cuisine. The managing director, Serge Guy, takes upon himself to supervise the kitchen, in charge of which is a foreign chef.

Bob and his five bandstars provide classical and dance music for the respective interims, while, specially after the cinema, charming hostesses are available as dancers. Family trade is welcomed.

A.D.C. Programme

A very attractive programme has been arranged for the first Club Evening of the season to be held at the Lyceum Theatre on Saturday at 9.15 p.m. The entertainment will consist of short plays and sketches with some musical interludes and concluding with Noel Cowards skit on the old fashioned Music Hall entitled "Red Peppers." The programme is definitely one that should not be missed. Tickets are available for members and their guests at Messrs. Moutrie's and at the theatre box-office.

"Laughter in Court"

Due at the Lyceum Theatre on October 17 the rehearsals for "Laughter in Court" are now well in hand. An exceptionally well-chosen cast has been assembled by the producer Mr. E. G. Smith-Wright including Mrs. A. Ricketts in the leading role; she is supported by Messrs. E. C. Baker, Sir Victor Sassoon, Dr. J. D. Riddell, Messrs. C. N. Abott, J. S. Chisholm, C. O. Cumming.

The performance scheduled for October 18 will be for the benefit of the British Women's Association War Work Fund.

At the Pelican

The management of the Pelican tonight is sponsoring another complimentary raffle, guests having collected the necessary coupons during the week. Three handsome prizes will be awarded as from 11.15 p.m., the orchestra assisting the M.C. with musical honours.

On the floor the Pelican Girls are presenting a new routine, which consists of ballet items and trios. At the pianos, Geza and Gino, leading the orchestra, prove their worth. These boys are considered the outstanding pianists for nightclub work in Shanghai.

"Four Feathers" On Wednesday

"British Bull's-eye" to Be Screened at Nanking with East Surreys in Film

"A British bull's eye!" says "Time" in its review of the latest Alexander Korda production to reach Shanghai; if somewhat less forcefully, every other important American reviewer re-echoes this sentiment in his assessment of "Four Feathers", technicolor cinema version of A. E. W. Mason's best selling novel of the same name.

An exciting and dramatic adventure story revolving round General Kitchener's spectacular capture of Khartoum, it has the broad expanse of the Egyptian Soudan for background. Filmed on the actual scenes of the engagement, the magnificent battle scenes carry a sharp impression of reality, that is materially aided by the brilliant colour photography. The hordes of Dervishes, sweeping down on the waiting British, provide one of the biggest thrills in recent pictures. They come in yelling masses, mounted on camels and horses and afoot, and twice the Tommies turn the attack.

Behind all this spectacle is the dramatic tale of a man who fights to prove to friends and sweetheart that he is not the coward they believe him to be which, indeed, he believes himself to be. Heading the cast are Ralph Richardson, John Clements, Jack Allen and Donald Grey, four young officers; C. Aubrey Smith, Grey's father and a retired veteran; June Duprez, as his daughter, engaged to marry Clements, and loved by Richardson.

Cowardice Feathers

As the four officers are ordered to Egyptian service, Clements, afraid to face danger, resigns his commission, receives three white feathers from his friends and plucks another from the white plume of Miss Duprez when she fails to understand. Then, to prove himself a man, he goes to Egypt, permits himself to be branded as a native mute, and seeks Kitchener's army.

Meanwhile, Richardson, leading a decoy company, goes blind when he suffers sunstroke, and when his men are slaughtered, with Allen and Grey taken prisoner, Clements saves his life. He seeks out the two prisoners in the stronghold of the Mahdi, organizes a revolt, and at the height of the battle with Kitchener's forces, captures the arsenal and aids the rout of the natives. Thus are the three feathers paid off, and the last likewise, as Miss Duprez and he resume their romance, and the blind Richardson pays his debt by stepping out of the way.

Studded with action, spectacle and gripping drama, and splendidly portrayed not only by the featured cast, but by every last member of the hordes of Dervishes and Fuzzywuzzies, too, with a special bouquet for the "smart and soldierlike manner" in which the East Surrey battalion now in Shanghai enact the roles of the British forces, "Four Feathers" can be justly described as a feather in the cap of the British company that made it. The picture comes to the Nanking theatre on Wednesday.

At the Park on Tuesday

This smart trio of dancers are to open mid-week at the Park.

Chinese Acrobats Again At Farrens

It is with a great amount of pleasure that patrons of Farrens again are witnessing the activities and antics of the Chu Yue Nan troupe of acrobats, who, having opened their return engagement, were in great form last night at this intime rendezvous. In spite of the fact that their routine is similar to preceding performances, their naivete is sparkling as before.

Rounding out the floorshow are Don and Dolly, whose work needs little comment—they seem to be perennial favourites — and Orlovsky with her entrancing classical dancing. Fingerut's orchestra are said to constitute the best organization of its size in Shanghai; patrons say that their work is indicative of this.

"We Are Not Alone"

With Jane Bryan substituted for Dolly Haas, who withdrew from the cast because of an attack of nerves, "We Are Not Alone" with Paul Muni is progressing nicely at Warners. Miss Haas, who attained note in Europe but who has made no Hollywood films, although she has been announced for several, prefers working with her director-husband, John Brahm, and he is the only one who has handled her successfully.

The story of the English doctor (Muni), the dancer he befriends and takes into his home (Miss Bryan) and the wife (Flora Robson), for whose murder they are convicted, is being given thoughtful production. A duplicate of an English village has been built on one stage at a cost of $40,000. The eight buildings which comprise the central part of the set have been constructed so that walls can be removed and acion shot in their interiors.

In the case of the doctor's dwelling, the system permits peering into the living room, dining room, kitchen and surgery. The entire stage has been lined with a surprisingly effective cyclorama, and some of the houses have been built into it, which give an illusion of depth. The streets of the town were paved wth composition cobblestones.

Park Hotel Trio

The Park Hotel Trio, a team of talented dancers will appear for the first time in Shanghai on Tuesday evening at the Sky Terrace Ball Room of the Park Hotel with their repertoire of interpretative and acrobatic dances.

RAINBOW BRIDGE

OFF for the foot of the Rainbow! What an objective for a vacation. Since 1909, a total of less than 3,000 persons have made their way on mule, horse or foot into the Piute Indian Reservation five miles north of the Arizona-Utah state line at Longitude 111 to see Rainbow Bridge, one of the great natural wonders of the world.

The dome of the Capitol Building at Washington would fit under the arch of Rainbow Bridge and never touch it. Of salmon pink sandstone, its perfect proportions, imitating the arch of the rainbow, have called forth from Indians and white men alike such descriptive titles as "The Eternal Rainbow," "Rainbow in the Desert," and "The Jewel of the Canyon Country."

Discovered to the white man in mid-August 1909, Rainbow Bridge soon became a mecca for explorers. But only the hardy and adventurous could stand the long pack trip from Kayenta, about 80 miles away. In the summer of 1913 Theodore Roosevelt and two of his sons roughed it to Kayenta and "packed in" to Rainbow Bridge, and their account of this trip brought more visitors.

There was no great increase, however, until Rainbow Lodge was built 6,450 feet up on the side of Navajo Mountain and an automobile road constructed to its hospitable doors. The Lodge is a comfortably furnished building of stone supplemented by a row of tourist cabins. It is about 150 miles from Flagstaff, Arizona. By this route one drives through Cameron, Tuba City and Tonalea.

The pack trip distance from the Lodge to Rainbow Bridge ranges between 11 and 20 miles. It seems like 40 if one has never ridden a mule before. Two days must be allowed for the trip. Whatever the mileage, the mule-back ride is such a kaleidoscope of colourful crimson and gold rock mountains, cavernous canyons, steep cliffs, caves, great stone elephants and other giant images that one becomes scenically intoxicated.

Suddenly, near the bridge at the opening of a mammoth cave, one really colossal in size, there appears the welcome sight of Bridge Camp which the Lodge maintains for visitors. Here a spring of cool water flows into a shallow pool, while round about are tents, which afford grateful shelter from the sun. After a short rest the mule cavalcade moves on down Bridge Canyon to the foot of the Stone Rainbow.

Shanghai Stocks

Yesterday's Business

The market on the Stock Exchange yesterday was dull and generally a shade easier; very little business was done there being no pressure to sell, the reason being probably the end of the month and consequent closing of accounts.

London Stocks

Friday's Closing Quotations

London, Sept. 29.

Week-end considerations restricted activity on the Stock Exchange today, but the markets subsequently ruled firmer, owing to resistance displayed by industrials.

Support, however, was not sustained and the markets closed dull, following news of the Russo-German Pact.

Some leading industrials recovered from the lowest levels of the day. Home rails were weaker and transatlantics moved lower, while oils and Kaffirs ruled dull.—Reuter.

1939 Cotton Crop Loan

Washington, Sept. 29.

The Farm Administration has decided to make an early announcement of the 1939 cotton crop loan, which will probably be at 8.30 cents per pound, as well as intensified utilization efforts.

The loan announcement will be made before spot prices fall to a level making such action mandatory, and loan differentials will be established,

New York Stocks

Friday's Closing Quotations

New York, Sept. 29.

Mostly fractional declines were recorded on Wall Street today, with steels, industrials and a few specialties registering losses from 1 to 2 points.

After a period of initial activity and weakness, the market rallied substantially and then fluctuated very narrowly.

Later, very dull conditions were witnessed, as after the new Russo-German accords, the possibility of peace moves created new problems for investors and speculators.

It is pointed out that a quick end to the present conflict might cause a bad drop in world commodity prices and slow down the domestic recovery swing.

Steels were very prominent in the decline and rally, while motors were buoyed by the sharp increase in production.

Meanwhile, despite the prevailing uncertainties, the consensus of opinion is that industrial news is working against any major sustained set-back.

The turnover amounted to 1,120,000 shares.—Reuter.

U.S. Commodities

Friday's Closing Quotations

New York, Sept. 30.

Easier conditions early prevailed in the cotton market, with quotations moving down on southern hedge-selling and liquidation. Later, the market rallied on general buying and speculative support, coupled with further trade buying. At the close, quotations ranged from 1 to 8 points up compared with the previous final levels.

Overnight buying orders caused rubber prices to advance at the initial callover. Later, the market turned uncertain owing to the Neutrality debate and the Russo-German peace overtures. Finally, a setback was witnessed on liquidation and diminished speculative purchases. At the end of the day's trading, losses from 10 to 40 points were registered.

The main influence affecting the Chicago Board of Trade today was the uncertain tenor of European news. Quotations dipped on speculative selling and in sympathy with the easiness of Wall Street advices. At the final bell, quotations were from 1 to 1¼ cents down from yesterday.—Reuter.

British Press Castigates New Moscow Move as Insolence

Nazi-Soviet Parcelling Off of Free Polish People and Lands Denounced; Weakness of Partnership Seen

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Sept. 30.

THE Soviet-German agreement is severely castigated in the British press today. "The Times" denounces it as insolent and iniquitous and says that the long-promised "peace offensive" was never intended as more than a manœuvre, and as a manœuvre, it is not even ingenious, but if it had been more specious than it is, it would still have been beaten off with vigour and contempt."

"The Times" denounces Hitlerism and says there can be no peace in that connection. It adds that relations with M. Stalin will be decided by events as, and when they disclose his own intentions, which are from clear. "We have sought no quarrel with the Soviet," says "The Times" in conclusion, "and it remains to be seen whether the Soviet desires to fasten a quarrel upon us."

The "Daily Telegraph" says the German hope of using Russia to dictate peace is doomed to failure. "If hostilities by Russia were threatened," the journal adds, "the reply of the Allies must still be precisely the same. But M. Stalin is a very wary man and is unlikely to go to any such extreme."

"Herr Hitler wants peace," says the "Daily Mail," but this "peace must be at his own price. We reject his terms. We abide by the pledges to restore Poland and make no peace with Hitlerism."

The "Daily Herald" says it will be idle to deny possible serious implications of the Soviet-German treaty. "But Britain's resolution and purpose is not in any way changed. They stand, and will stand."

"The peace terms which would enable the world to breathe again, to make a fresh start upon the upward path," says the "News-Chronicle," could be "discussed tomorrow, but they do not include acquiescence in aggression. We have drawn out the sword for the cause of freedom, and until reversion to force or domination by threat of force is stayed, there can be no turning back.

Nazi-Soviet Partners Unhappy

Three aspects of yesterday's activities in Moscow, says Reuter's Diplomatic Correspondent, are very important, as they seem to show that Nazi-Soviet collaboration is not so wholehearted as it seems at first glance. Firstly, he points out, the new Soviet-German treaty does not provide for automatic assistance for Germany if the war continues, but merely for consultation. Secondly, at almost the moment of the signing of the pact, Russia entered into a form of military alliance with Esthonia directed exclusively against Germany.

Thirdly, Russia renounced a large part of the booty offered in the first preliminary partition, inhabited by 3,000,000 Poles, in order to retain the frontier of White Russia and the Ukraine.

Bait in "Peace Offer"

The fact that no annexation was proclaimed by Germany suggests, according to well-informed quarters, that the Reich may attempt to bait a peace offer with a proposal for an independent Poland under German hegemony, though it is pointed out that such a proposal would have no chance of success with the British and French Allies.

The German-Soviet pact and the announcement that failing success of efforts to end the war in the West there would be further German-Russian co-operation, are regarded by newspapers both in London and Paris as introducing no new element of importance into the situation. Nevertheless, the tone and the terms of the joint Soviet-German declaration are regarded as further evidence of the extent of the deterioration in standards of international conduct, and as emphasizing the necessity of a firm stand against methods which cynically sacrifice the independence of small states.

Europe Must Be Redeemed

British newspapers recall the statement by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, some days ago, that Britain's "general purpose in this struggle is well known. It is to redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression and to enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and liberties."

The "Star" says that "the pact between Russia and Germany has not altered the great question at issue. The war is being fought for freedom, and every move which has taken place since it began has only served to make that fact more plain."

The "Evening News" is typical of much other comment in suggesting that Herr Hitler has got rather a poor bargain. "What does Hitler get for thus abandoning his dreams of unlimited Lebensraum at the expense of Russia and the Balkans?" the newspaper asks, and replies: "He gets an agreement that Russia will take quantities of German-manufactured goods in return for Russian foodstuffs and raw materials—an exchange the extent of which has always been and will continue to be fixed by Germany's limited war-time ability to produce goods and Russia's even more marked inability, in the state of her present transport facilities, to deliver food and raw materials."

Nazi Plaints Reversed

The methods by which the independent State of Poland is "wiped right off the map" and her people parcelled out between two dictatorships, which assert their intention firmly to plant their supposedly rival ideologies in territories they have invaded and seized, are particularly noted by newspaper commentators here as finally exposing the hollowness of once clamant Nazi protests against the so-called Versailles dictate, and erstwhile protestations of Nazi spokesmen in favour of "self-determination of peoples."—Reuter.

French Press Says "No"

Paris, Sept. 30.

The French Press unanimously answers "No" to the Hitler-Stalin peace offer. "No peace is possible with men who both on the diplomatic and on the ideological plane have betrayed everything," writes M. Dormesson in the "Figaro."—Reuter.

U.S. Press Comments

New York, Sept. 30.

"Peace of Brigands" and "Partners in Plunder" are two of the headlines appearing in the papers this morning over comments on the Russo-German pact. The press stated that American opinion was entertaining no illusions on the value and scope of the peace offensive.

"France and Britain cannot accept peace, under such conditions," the "New York Times" stressed and added that the Soviet-German agreement is far from as definite as German propaganda would like to make it appear. One of the most important consequences of the pact is that the partition of Poland by Russia and Germany compels Britain and France to fight against two partners to reconstitute an independent Poland.

The "New York Herald-Tribune" stressed that any peace now could only be a truce. "The Moscow Treaty does not allow Hitler to appear in the light of a victor. If Hitler wants peace now, he must either give in or conquer. A few scraps of paper signed with Moscow do not mean a conquest."—Havas.

Warsaw Heroes to Retain Swords

Germans Agree to Let Brave Men Go Home as Defenders Surrender

Warsaw, Sept. 29.

Polish officers of the Warsaw defenders would retain their swords upon surrender to the German troops, a Polish communique announced today.

It reported that final terms of surrender were established and that the city would be surrendered in the course of the day. Soldiers of the defending forces would be permitted to return to their homes and would not be made prisoners-of-war, the communique added.—Havas.

German Entry Tomorrow

Berne, Sept. 29.

German troops would make a formal entry into Warsaw only on Monday, October 2, instead of today as previously announced, according to an official German communique this afternoon. The disarmed Polish defenders of the surrendered town this morning began to evacuate their positions, and this procedure was expected to last two or three days.

The fortress of Modlin, another centre of determined Polish resistance, surrendered unconditionally under German pressure, the communique added. Some 1,200 officers and 30,000 men, 4,000 of them wounded, were found inside. In conclusion, the German communique stated that the German Command handed over south Przenysl to Soviet forces yesterday.—Havas.

New Polish Protectorate

Amsterdam, Sept. 29.

Following final German-Soviet agreement on division of the spoils in Poland, Nazi political quarters declared today that the proclamation of a Polish protectorate similar to that in Bohemia and Moravia was to be expected shortly, it was reported here.

Warsaw would be the capital of the protectorate, the Nazis were said to have forecast. The German Government admittedly was somewhat embarrassed in creating the protectorate because of difficulties in choosing a nominal Polish head of the State. In view of these difficulties, the Nazis stated that German military rule might remain in the occupied Polish areas for quite a long time.

The Reich's authorities would spare no efforts to settle the question as soon as possible, however, it was declared here, because they wished to lay formal claim to Polish assets abroad in the name of the "new Polish Government."—Havas.

Berlin, Sept. 29.

Reichsmarks and zlotyes would be equally valid as legal tender in the German-occupied territories of Poland as from Monday, official D.N.B. (German) news agency reported today quoting a High Command communique. The zloty would henceforth be worth 50 pfennig, it added.—Havas.

Heroin Traffickers in District Court

Alleged Leader Denies Connection with Gang

Four alleged heroin dealers in whose possession, it was stated, more than $10,000 worth of the contraband was seized were brought before the First Special District Court yesterday by the Settlement police. The alleged principals, Chin Tze-ching and a woman, were charged with selling narcotics. The other two, also a man and a woman, were indicted on a charge of aiding and abetting in the crime. Judgment was reserved pending further investigations.

The seized contraband was brought to the court as an exhibit together with some other chemicals used in adulterating and colouring heroin. Chin pleaded not guilty to the charge, denying that he had ever sold heroin to a police informant. He said that the $3,100 found in his room belonged to him and not to the heroin gang. One of the women accused, however, admitted that she had been dealing in the contraband.

The four accused were arrested on Friday morning by officers attached to the Narcotic Squad following a long investigation during which the police obtained some heroin from the ring, posing as customers. They were caught in a house in Pakhoi Road where more than 80 ounces of heroin were found. This narcotic distributing centre is one of the most extensive ones smashed up by the police for a long time.

President Roosevelt Convinced U.S. Can Stay Out of War

Senator Pittman Says New Neutrality Bill to Modify Johnson Act to Allow Trading Credits

Washington, Sept. 30.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt at his press conference yesterday reiterated his conviction that the United States will be able to remain aloof from the European war. He said his answers to all questions were predicated on that one paramount fact but declined to comment on the Administration's revised Neutrality Act now pending in Congress. He withheld comment on the Western Hemisphere safety zone proposed at the Pan-American neutrality convention at Panama City.

Asked whether he could reveal details of the War Department's draft plans for industrial mobilization in case of war, the President replied in slow, measured phrases: "We are not in war. I do not think we are going to war. Therefore I do not think it is a matter of public interest." The President repeatedly emphasized that all Administration moves were proceeding on a peace rather than a war basis because the Administration expects the United States to remain aloof from the European war.

The President said the neutrality patrol and other sources had received reports of foreign submarines being sighted in American coastal waters, but he said these reports had not been verified.

Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the press he believed the revised neutrality bill sent to the Senate by his committee yesterday would entitle Britain and France to three month commercial credits in the United States at the President's discretion.

Johnson Act Modified

"The new bill would act in modification of the Johnson Act," Senator Pittman said, referring to the Act prohibiting American loans to nations in arrears in their debt payments to the United States. He said the new bill would open the way for the Allies to obtain three month commercial credits in the United States, thereby equalizing the situation between the Allies and Germany in this respect. He said Germany owes no Great War debt to the United States and therefore is not affected by the new Act.

Senator Hirman Johnson, isolationist Republican of California and author of the Johnson Act, contradicted Senator Pittman, however, and insisted Germany was within the purview of the neutrality act. He said Germany owes the United States $3,000,000,000 for the costs of the Army of occupation and satisfaction of various mixed claims awards. He said Germany also was being held responsible for Austria's $24,000,000 defaulted debt to the United States. "It is nonsense to think about additional German borrowing in the United States," Senator Johnson said. "It is obvious that Germany can't borrow any money here."

Amendment to Be Fought

Senator Johnson said he would introduce an amendment to the Neutrality Act guaranteeing that the Administration's bill would not modify the Johnson Act regulating loans to defaulting debtor nations.

Senator Pittman said later that he would oppose such an amendment on the grounds that the Johnson Act was enacted in peace time.

"We are faced with a certain condition in Europe now," Senator Pittman said. "In passing law dealing with belligerents, there should be no discrimination."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee met yesterday but no further vote or new provisions to the act approved on Thursday were offered. The Senate will begin debate on the bill repealing arms embargo provisions of the Neutrality Act on Monday at noon.

The final draft of the bill permits American aircraft to deliver mail, personal effects and passengers anywhere in the Pacific Ocean and the China Sea. Senator Pittman said the China Sea was mentioned in order to "avoid any legal argument as to whether it is part of the Pacific Ocean. This provision takes in all stations and stopping places including Hongkong."—United Press.

No Soviet-German Invitation

Washington, Sept. 29.

Both President Roosevelt and the State Secretary, Mr. Cordell Hull, emphasized today that they had no knowledge of reports that Soviet Russia and Germany intended to invite the United States to a European peace conference.

The Chief Executive added that he doubted the accuracy of such reports, which were brought to his notice by news correspondents at today's press conference.

Mr. Hull, in his statement, declared that American public opinion would be unfavourable in its reception of proposals for the United States to associate itself with peace terms emanating from aggressor States. Such proposals, in American opinion, he added, might be taken to indicate, if accepted, that the U.S. was sanctioning the aggressors' conquests.—Havas.

R.A.F. Training Plans Demonstrated

Many Mechanical Devices Used in Planes

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Sept. 30.

Methods adopted for speeding-up the training of airmen without impairing the all-round abilities of fully graduated pilots were demonstrated today to journalists representing Great Britain, France and neutral countries at one of the many training schools camouflaged among lonely hills.

The visitors were impressed by the many mechanical appliances to assist training, including a camera obscura, which enables officers to determine the accuracy of a pilot's bombing in actual flight, and by temperamental tests, whereby men are allocated either to fighting or bombing squadrons.

Statistics were naturally given sparingly, but it was revealed that where a training school turned out 90 pilots in 1934, the figure was now 500.

In past weeks, pilot production is said to have been enormous.—Reuter.

Guerillas Attack Nanking Train

30 Japanese Said Killed And Others Wounded

Railway communications between Shanghai and Nanking were disrupted on Friday because of a sudden attack launched by guerillas at the Wanglin Railway Station, northeast of Wusih about halfway between Shanghai and Nanking where more than 30 Japanese soldiers were killed and scores of others wounded, it was reported yesterday. Shanghai-bound trains failed to reach the North Railway Station here on Friday, and many coaches used by the military were overturned following an explosion.

The report states that on Thursday night strict military precautions were taken at the North Railway Station as a military train comprising eleven coaches was to leave for Nanking. When the train was near Wanglin shortly after midnight about 100 Japanese soldiers guarding the heavily-loaded train discovered that many yards of the railway track had been removed but it was too late to stop the train which was running at high speed.

A terrific explosion followed which overturned the train. A fierce battle ensued in which guerillas attacked the Japanese guards more than 30 of whom were killed while others wounded. The fighting lasted until early Friday morning when the guerillas escaped carrying with them military materials they seized from the wrecked train, it is said.

Japanese forces in Changchow and Wusih dashed to the scene but could do nothing to remedy the situation. Repair workers later were sent and rebuilt the tracks. One Nanking-bound passenger train was stopped at Wusih.

Quoting arrivals from Changchow the Chinese report further stated that nine Japanese trucks carrying 300 soldiers were attacked by soldiers of the Fourth Route Army on the highway near Chingkiang, on September 16. It was a surprise attack and more than 200 Japanese casualties were reported. Seven of the trucks were destroyed while the guerillas made good their escape running away with several machine guns, more than 50 rifles and many documents, it is claimed.

Japanese Watching Soviet Moves

Great Interest Shown in Agreement with Esthonia; Balkan Manœuvres

Tokyo, Sept. 30.

Japanese newspapers today show more interest in the treaty of mutual assistance between the Soviet Union and Esthonia than in the agreement of a common frontier between Germany and Russia.

"The European war has given the Soviet Union a golden opportunity for fishing in troubled waters, therefore the Soviet Union will stick to her neutrality, which will provide her many more similar opportunities," says the "Yomiuri."

This newspaper also asserts that by establishing an Esthonian "protectorate," the Soviet Union will, succeed in dominating the Baltic, after which she will watch for an opportunity to advance in the Balkans.

In similar vein, the "Asahi" says after realising a long-cherished desire to dominate the Baltic, the Soviet Union is likely to refrain from taking action against Latvia, Lithuania or Finland at present, but will concentrate on the Black Sea area.

"It is problematical whether war will spread to the Balkans immediately," the "Asahi" adds.

The newspaper predicts, however, that a hot diplomatic battle will be fought over the Balkans by Britain and France against Italy, Germany and the Soviet Union.—Reuter.

Chungking, Sept. 30.

In a leader published today on European developments, the local independent "Sin Min Pao" states that the European situation may be divided into three periods, as follows:

1. With Britain as the key Power, a period which extends from the time of the Munich agreement to the termination of the military talks between the Soviet, France and Britain, in which the German eastward expansion movement was checked.

2. With Germany as the key Power, extending from the conclusion of the German-Soviet non-aggression pact to the invasion of Poland and the declaration of war by Britain and France, which characterized the start of the second world war.

3. With Russia as the key Power, a period extending from the Soviet invasion of Poland to the present Soviet domination of the Balkans and the Baltic Sea.

Future events, the journal adds, will depend on the development of relations between Germany and Russia, and also on the attitude of other Powers towards Russia.—Reuter.

Britain Ready to Give Rubber to U.S.

First Step in Barter Agreement

London, Sept. 29.

The Ministry of Supply has requested offers of rubber for shipment in October and/or November, in November and/or December, sellers option, c.i.f. Boston or c.i.f. New Orleans, according to an announcement made today.

Shipment must be made in British or United States vessels, and shipment via the Mediterranean is excluded.

Preference will be given to offers of rubber packed in ten cases to a ton.

This constitutes one of the first developments under the Anglo-American Barter Plan whereby Britain exchanges rubber for United States cotton.

It is stressed that this offer system should not be confused with the tender system, which has not yet been put into operation.—Reuter.

British Admiralty Denies American Report

Mechanical Might

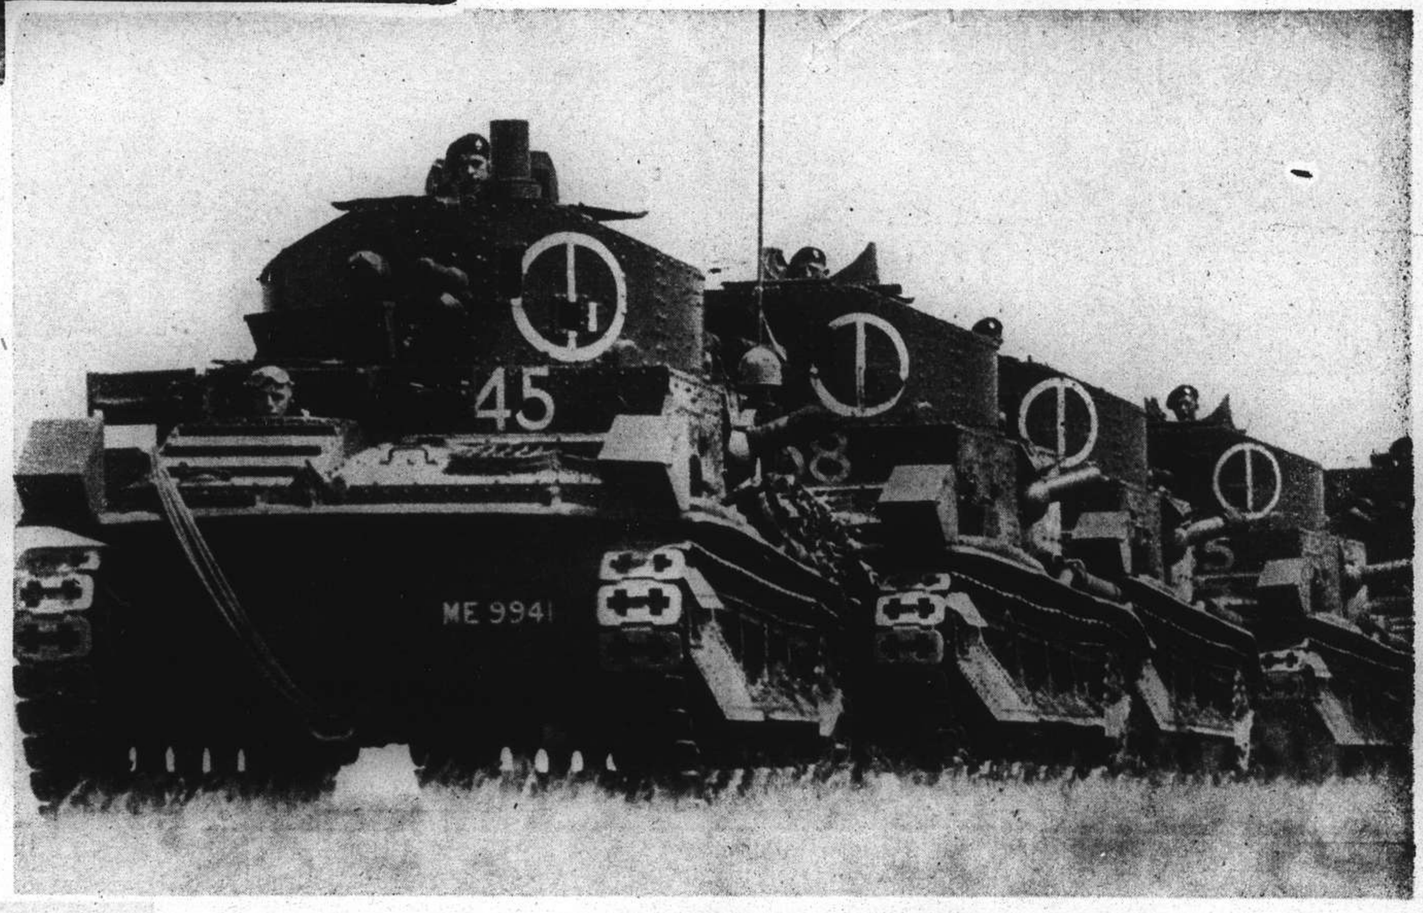
Britain's mechanical army is a powerful and mobile one and includes tanks of all types, from monsters capable of a high speed over any ground to a swarm of two-seater machine gun tanks which are the modern equivalent of cavalry.

An impressive sight on Salisbury Plain during army manœuvres when tanks of all types paraded in formation.

An amphibious tank produced by Vickers-Armstrong. It has a land speed of 40 miles per hour and can negotiate the stiffest obstacles. On water it has a speed of 6 miles per hour without any preliminary adjustments.

Seen from the rear, three monster tanks go into action.

A skeleton tank, in which a recruit is receiving instruction on how to handle the controls.



An assembly of heavy tanks.

A tank can negotiate remarkable obstacles.

These small two-seater machines fitted with machine-guns are designed for pursuing a fleeing army.

The Country Week-End

VIGNETTES OF LIFE

By J. NORMAN LYND

"HEAVENS! SHE'S SEEN US! WE'LL HAVE TO STAY!"
"—SO I'M BUDGETING THE WORK AND YOU BOYS ARE TO DO THE DISHES AND THE BEDS!"
THE "LITTLE SHACK" THAT TURNED OUT TO BE JUST THAT.....AND IT'S 120 MILES BACK TO THAT NICE, COOL, CLEAN APARTMENT IN TOWN.
THE WEEK-END, TO BE DEVOTED TO REST... AND THEN THE MAID WALKS OUT.
THE CITY MAN WHO LETS HIMSELF IN FOR A WEEK-END WHERE THEY DON'T BOTHER TO GET A SUNDAY PAPER AND THE ONLY BOOKS ARE "LITTLE WOMEN" AND THE "ROVER BOYS".
IT'S SUCH FUN IN THE PUDDLE YOUR HOST CALLS A POOL! THERE'S NO SHOWER, SO YOU DON'T USE A TOWEL AFTER THE "SWIM"... YOU DRY IN THE SUN, THEN DUST YOURSELF OFF WITH A WHISK-BROOM.
THE EXTRA GUEST ALWAYS GETS THE TRICK ROOM IN THE ATTIC WHERE IT'S HOTTER THAN A TWO DOLLAR PISTOL.... AND ALMOST AS DANGEROUS.
THE HOST'S CAT HAS A LEASE ON THE GUEST-ROOM BED AND WON'T BE DISPOSSESSED.
"HEY, MADGE, HOW DO YOU WORK THIS GADGET, ANYWAY?"
THERE'S THE QUAINT, OLD-FASHIONED PLACE WHERE EVERYTHING IS JUST AS IT WAS OVER A HUNDRED YEARS AGO AND TWICE AS UNCOMFORTABLE.
